Want to Save Money, Energy (Personal or Man-Made), Shoe Leather? Use Loop Bus

New Loop Bus timetables are out on the town (you can get them at locations listed below), new blue and white taping shows you where bus stops are, the fare is still 25¢, gas is still expensive and traffic is still heavy. So.....

Pick up a timetable, lock your car in the garage, disband the car-pool and climb aboard.

Let's suppose you have a second-grader at Riverside School. He's got some reading problems and he has to come into town every day for special help at a clinic. The first day --- just to show him how --- take him to the bus stop across from Riverside School where he can catch the 12:36 bus for arrival at 12:44 at Palmer Square.

Ask Howie --- that's Howard Sjursen, the bus-driver --- to tell your reader exactly where he'll be picked up for the ride back. It could be the 3:11 at the same Palmer Square stop. He'll be dropped off at Riverside School and can walk home from there. Saved: two car trips a day carrying and fetching. Cost: 50¢.

Blue and white tape makes the bus stops easy to find. In the Borough, a sign reading "No parking from here to corner" means the bus stops there. The catch is that not every "here to corner" sign is a bus stop, so Sydney Taggart, the Loop Bus co-ordinator, has applied the blue and white tape.

Not every sign has the tape yet. She hopes to get the junior representatives on the Transportation Committee to do the Riverside area this week-end. She's already had the help of the three sons of Michael Lion, who's head of the Transportation Committee.

Here's an older child than our second-grader. This girl is a student at the Middle School and she lives on Allison Road and goes to the Jewish Center for Hebrew classes. Mother works, so she's on her own wheels. She can pick up the 2:53 p.m. bus at John Witherspoon School, and get off at the Cedar Lane bus stop at 3:20. After class, she'll go to that same bus stop and pick up the 5:35 (or she could take the bus at Princeton-Kingston Road and Riverside). She will get off at Nassau and Bayard Lane at 5:46 and walk home to Allison Road. Her working mother, not burdened with the job of negotiating late afternoon traffic all the way to the Jewish Center, will have dinner piping hot and ready to eat.

But the Loop isn't just a school bus. Older citizens love it because they can ride free, anywhere, any time.

You live in Lloyd Terrace and you want to go to the Senior Citizens Lunch at Littlebrook School with two friends. If you're able to walk up Harrison to Nassau, you can catch the 12:40 bus in front of the Bowers Building, diagonally across from Princeton Gourmet. As the bus swings through Riverside, it will pick up your friend who lives on Riverside. Then, it will stop for your friend who lives with her daughter on Dodds Lane, dropping all three of you at

State May Not Pay Its Hoped-for 15% Share of Sewer Costs; Contract to Build New Treatment Plant to be Signed Friday

This Friday -- at the unlikely hour of 8 a.m. – the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority will let the low bid of $20,588,000 to Perkins, Kanak & Foster, Inc., of Newtown, Pennsylvania, for construction of the new 10-million-gallon treatment plant and pumping station on River Road, and at the same time, will accept the offer of Hornblower & Weeks-Hemphill Noyes for the bonds.

The plant will be built on land owned by Princeton's Sewer Operating Committee. The SOC has signed an agreement selling the Authority the 26.5 acres for $255,000. The parcel doesn't include land now used by the SOC. The $255,000 can either be retained by the SOC, or divided among its three members – Princeton Borough, Princeton Township, and Princeton University.

As usual, however, a cloud hangs over the beleaguered Authority: the state seems to have gone back on its agreement to defray 15 percent of the cost. Or, as Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley said this week, "The state has not made a positive decision to give us aid."

It is Mayor Cawley's educated guess that the state doesn't have the money. It's in the November bond-issue package.

By accepting the $18,396,850 Federal grant for the first segment of the sewer program, the mayor pointed out, the Authority committed itself to the whole program even if there is no funding at all for the rest. This first segment will take care of the two Princetons, West Windsor and – as a customer – South Brunswick.

The second segment, which would serve the two Hopewells and Pennington, is still under environmental study.

All communities making up the Authority have hoped for 15 percent state money which, added to a 75 percent Federal grant, would leave only 10 percent for the towns to find themselves.

"The bottom-line impact," said Mayor Cawley gloomily this week, "is that if the Federal money for upstream communities -- Pennington and the Hopewells – is 75 percent, loss of that state 15 percent will increase the annual sewer charges to customers – to all of us – by 20 percent."

He added that there is no way to be sure there will be a 75 percent Federal grant for upstream. It could be less. However, with a somewhat brighter voice, he recalled that originally, the Authority expected only 60 percent Federal funding.

In a week or so, Authority people hope to meet with David Bardin, the Commissioner of Environmental Protection, to find out what's behind the state's action – or lack of it.

"It's hard to respond until we know the reasons," the mayor said, "we've heard it said that the state thinks Princeton is so affluent it doesn't need the money. We've heard the state was influenced by that Department of Community Affairs report saying sewer systems led to unwanted development. But how can such a broad generalization fit our problem? Treatment facilities are needed here – based on existing development we already have."

Warming to his topic, the mayor said, "The state's got a helluva nerve -- when it prevented these towns, like Pennington and Hopewell – from doing the responsible thing about building sewers ten years ago. Now, to say 'we won't support you!....'

In the mid-1960s, the state refused to allow smaller upstream towns to build their own sewer systems, requiring them to join in a regional approach.

"We'll argue, with the state, that idea of unwanted development. In a one-treatment-plant system, there are prohibitions on making connections to the main trunk if it goes through undeveloped land, and our lawyer, William Miller, thinks that will hold up in court against a developer."

"Also, we think maybe we can show that costs are high partly because standards have been set so high: state-established standards for water purity must be met. Frankly, I wonder if Congress and the state aren't beginning to have second thoughts about requiring too much, too-pure water. There is a good possibility that higher levels of government have been burned by these too-expensive systems."

OK FOR SHEEHAN

From Council. Timothy Sheehan won unanimous Borough Council approval Tuesday night to add 2,300 square feet of retail space to the ground floor of the unfinished building at Nassau and Markham known as the Sheehan building (although it is technically owned by the Dundas Corporation.)

The Borough Zoning Board had recommended that Council grant the use variance, bulk variance, and wavier of off-street parking requirements. The Zoning Board had denied Mr. Sheehan approval to add two more stories to the three-story building.

Off-street parking bothered some on Council more than the actual expansion of retail stores. Mr. Sheehan had told the Zoning Board he owned some adjoining apartments and would tell tenants they couldn't park on the property after 8:30 in the morning, thereby freeing about eight spaces. However, Mr. Sheehan's attorney, William Baggit, emphasized that this wasn't a condition laid down by the zoners.

"Can Council attach its own conditions?" wondered Robert Powell.

Thomas Jamieson, sitting in as Council's counsel because Borough attorney Gordon Griffin is already in court with Mr. Sheehan said the Zoning Board probably had those eight spaces in mind, although it hadn't said so specifically. Mr. Baggit said Mr. Sheehan wouldn't mind if Council made it a specific condition that the eight spaces must be provided.

"I don't want to legislate anyone getting out at 8:30," protested Council member Martin Lombardo.

"What will happen to these apartment tenants on Saturday?" wondered Council member Barbara Sigmund, and from the audience, Hans Lechner said they could park in spaces used during weekdays by office tenants in the Sheehan building.

If you tell apartment tenants to move their cars, they'll just park out on Markham, where the Zoning Board clearly doesn't want them, one resident observed.

Mr. Powell offered an amendment requiring Mr. Sheehan to reserve eight spaces on his apartment property for the use of building tenants from 8:30 to 5:30 weekdays. But, it didn't even get a "second" from Council.

"We'd get more trouble than we'd solve," commented Council member Murray Medvin.

Council introduced an ordinance granting 8.5 per cent pay increases to Borough police. Other municipal employees have already received a five percent increase. They will now get an additional 3.5 percent to bring them in line with police. Raises are retroactive to January 1 and will cost the Borough $60,000 from the current budget.

If the money can't be squeezed out from somewhere in the next two months, an emergency appropriation – taken from next year's budget – will have to be made.

Council also introduced a sign ordinance having discovered that 90 percent of commercial windows are in violation of the present law. The measure limits signs to 15 percent of the total window area, with a four square foot limit. Public hearing November 11, with merchant comment invited.

A resolution asking the PUC for hearings on certain aspects of the Elizabethtown Water Company's rate structure before a rate increase is granted, was set aside for further study.

Loop Bus

Littlebrook School at 12:30 in plenty of time for the 1 p.m. lunch.

At 2:04, you all climb into the bus when it stops at Littlebrook and make the reverse loop trip home.

"If this bus ever goes out of business," said one senior citizen who lives on Riverside, "I'll have to move out of Princeton. I WON'T be dependent on my daughter and my friends."

No Charge. Incidentally, about those free rides for the elderly. Why not simply get on an inner Loop bus with a few cronies and ride the whole loop, looking at the sights and enjoying the fall foliage? Then take the Outer Loop and do the same thing? Won't cost you a dime.

Now, two married graduate students who live in "the project" on Harrison Street, take the bus to do marketing.

After a day of classes and study, they hop on the 4:17 at Sycamore and Harrison (although they could get on at Cedar and Sycamore). They arrive at the Shopping Center at 4:26 and the marketing begins.

About an hour later, laden with bags, they're ready to catch the last bus of the day – the 5:30. (Like all Loop Buses, it stops between Bamberger's and Bon Appetit.) They'll be back at Sycamore and Harrison at 5:38, ready to prepare dinner.

Thrifty, like most students, they've bought a $4 discount book which gives them 21 tickets. That's less than 20 cents a ride. Rainy days, or when their bikes are out of commission, they can use a ticket to ride to campus or library.

They bought the ticket books from the bus driver. Howie, the Inoer Loop driver, maybe, or his colleague, Lou Sitzler, who drives the Outer Loop.

Transfers Are Free. Bikes are great for getting kids around town, as parents know. But in the rain...a Littlebrook boy with a dentist appointment. He gets the Outer Loop bus at 2:50 and goes to the Shopping Center where he transfers to the Inner Loop (no extra charge).

He can hop off at Harrison or ride uptown, wherever his dentist is. If he's uptown, he just might decide to stop at the library and go home from that bus stop.

Bus Timetables

New Loop Bus schedules are now ready. Pick them up at any of the following places. And don't forget: if you're over 62, you can ride free, all day every day, Monday through Friday.

Timetables are at: Borough Hall, Township Hall, the public library, TOWN TOPICS, The Whole Earth Center, Cox's Store, public schools, the manager's office of the Shopping Center facing the east parking lot, Lawrence Apartments, the main desk at the Medical Center, and on each bus.

His mother couldn't possibly have made the two round-trips necessary to take him and bring him home, in her big gas-guzzler for only 50 cents.

An office manager who works uptown and lives on Jefferson Road has a choice of buses to work. There's the 8:09 from Jefferson and Terhune, arriving Palmer Square at 8:23, or the 8:14 from the John Witherspoon School, also arriving Palmer Square at 8:23. (It's the same bus). Going back home after work, there's the 5:44 from Palmer Square that stops at the Terhune and Jefferson corner at 5:52.

Two Minutes to the Y. Near Leigh Avenue and Witherspoon lives a young mother. Her husband has the car all day, so she leaves the baby with grandmother and starts off in the morning for a class at the YWCA. She could walk, but she's running late and she's got shopping to do afterwards, so she relies on the bus, catching it at Clay and Witherspoon at 9:05. She's at the Y by 9:07.

After class, she walks uptown, buys fabric, pattern, thread and zipper, picks up shoes at the repair shop. Then she goes to the library and takes out an arm-load of books. She's trying to make her English as good as her native Italian, and she studies a great deal. She crosses to Toto's Market to buy some Italian specialties -- her mother-in-law is coming to dinner – then she crosses back to the bus stop by the cemetery, identifying it by the blue and white tape, and gets on the 12:49 bus. It drops her at the entrance to the hospital at 12:50, an easy walk home.

Several bus stops have been laid out near the hospital. A Lloyd Terrace woman, who doesn't quite feel up to that walk to Nassau, goes across Harrison street and takes the 10:24, planning to stop at the Shopping Center for a bit of shopping before a doctor's appointment. She gets off, buys stamps at the new post office self-service unit, picks up some hosiery, and at the bus stop between Bamberger's and Bon Appetit, catches the 11 a.m. bus. It takes her to the Leigh Avenue stop, an easy step across Witherspoon for her appointment.

At 12:05 – the doctor kept her waiting, as usual – she gets a bus from that same stop and travels uptown, getting off in front of Nassau Hall at 12:11. She picks up a prescription at her pharmacy, strolls Nassau, has a bite to eat, and at 2 p.m. is back at the Nassau Hall stop for a ride that will take her to Nassau and Harrison by 2:15.

If she feels like it, she can walk down Harrison. If not, or if it's raining, she can have a little ride: looping through Riverside and coming back at 2:24, to the bus stop right across from Lloyd Terrace. It's been a full day, and it's time for a nap.

Assistance Available. Bus drivers, Mrs. Taggart and everyone on the Transportation Committee is eager to help anyone use the Loop Bus system. Mrs. Taggart has been talking with members of the clerical staff at St. Paul's to see what can be done for Italian-speaking parishioners who can't read English, but who would benefit immensely from the bus system. It's easy, for example, to get children from Community Park to catechism class at St. Paul's. The 2:51 will take them to the church by 3:12.

In the past two weeks, over 1,000 people each week have ridden the blue and white Loop Buses. The Transportation Committee is reaching out more and more to potential riders with specialized needs -- language problems, 9-5 work schedules, and so on. Workers still find the schedules difficult to fit around a working day, but the bus hours have been expanded later in the afternoon, and things are better for the 9-5er than they were.

Witherspoon St. Resident Found Murdered in His Apartment - Philadelphia Man Charged after Turning Himself in to Police

A Philadelphia resident has been charged with the murder of Lawrence Tolve, 26, 26 Witherspoon Street -- the Borough's first murder victim since the shooting February 13, 1968, of Kirsti Pfister, a Princeton Bank and Trust bank teller during an attempted robbery.

Braynard Purnell Jr., 23, a maintenance worker at the Central's 30th Street in Philadelphia, is being held without bail in Mercer County Jail. He is scheduled to appear in Borough Court November 5 for a preliminary cause hearing.

Purnell was charged with murder Sunday night by Capt. Theodore Lewis. Chief Michael Carnevale said that Purnell has signed a written statement around 10 p.m., admitting his guilt.

An autopsy conducted by Mercer County Medical Examiner Dr. David Fluck revealed that the cause of death was strangulation with a wire cord which police found around the victim's neck. Chief Carnevale reported that a screwdriver had also been driven into the victim's chest. There were stab wounds from a knife in the chest and left leg.

12-Year Friendship. The body was identified by the victim's father, Rocco Tolve of Millburn. His mother is reported to be living in Florida.

For the past five years, Tolve had been employed during the day as a dishwasher at the Hun School. At night, police said, he worked from 7 to 11 in the Alchemist & Barrister restaurant next door to his apartment. He and Purnell had known each other for approximately 12 years, Chief Carnevale said.

No Motive Established. At this point, police have not yet established a motive for the slaying, the Chief commented. He and Capt. Lewis, assisted by Detectives Charles Harris and Robert McAvenia, and Lawrence Welle of the Mercer County Prosecutor's Office are continuing the investigation.

Concern by fellow workers over the absence of Mr. Tolve, described as a reliable and punctual worker, led to the discovery of his body. Employees at the Hun School called police Saturday morning, a few hours after he had failed to appear.

At 11:15, police knocked at his door and got no response. After Hun School employees had also checked his apartment later without success, police returned at 1:30. Ptl. Bernard Lenhardt walked along a ledge to enter the small apartment above Tiger Auto through a window. He found Mr. Tolve, clad in his underwear, dead on the floor. Police said that there was no sign of forced entry.

Mr. Tolve was last seen alive Friday between 10:30 and 11 p.m. when he went to the Colonial restaurant on Witherspoon Street to pick up two orders to take out. Chief Carnevale added that the police investigation had revealed that a Princeton woman had received a call from the victim at 11:55 that night.

Not Involved With Town. Chief Carnevale reported that Mr. Tolve had attended the Johnstone Training Center, an institution for those with a learning disability. He was described by fellow workers as one who had never become involved with his community.

The intensive police investigation lasted 30 hours from the time of the discovery of the body until Purnell signed his written statement.

Police immediately compiled a list of those who had been associated with the victim. "Purnell was foremost on the list of those we wanted to question," Chief Carnevale said, "because of things uncovered in interviews with various other people."

Purnell had lived in Camden before moving to Philadelphia less than a year ago. From Camden, where their investigation soon took them, police were able to reach Purnell by phone in Philadelphia. He agreed to come to Borough headquarters and be interviewed.

Described by Carnevale as "low key," the interview began at 2:15. It was conducted by Capt. Lewis, Chief Carnevale and Mercer County Detective James Dillon.

Certain inconsistencies led the police to bring in State Police Lt. Edward Gunnell to administer a Polygraph (lie detector) test, which Purnell agreed to take. The lie detector test led to Purnell signing his statement, Chief Carnevale said.

Purnell was arraigned before Judge Philip Carchman at 10:10 p.m. Sunday.

At 1:45 Monday morning, Detectives Harris and McAvenia and Assistant Prosecutor Welle, armed with a search warrant, opened the trunk of Purnell's car in Philadelphia. Inside, the officers found a pair of blood-stained trousers which Purnell admitted were his.

Mr. Tolve had lived alone in his apartment. He had been befriended and assisted by Purnell's parents in Camden while he was attending the Johnstone Center, Chief Carnevale said.

Purnell was not known in Princeton. He was described as a "frequent absentee" by his supervisor at the 30th Street Station.

PADDLE? NOT TENNIS.... Canoes. Trailing a languid hand in the warm waters of the canal and dreamily watching fall foliage, Township Committee Monday night listened to colleague Abbot Low Moffat explain what the Environmental Commission would like to do with the Township's strip of open space land between Stony Brook and the canal, off Alexander Street.

The Commission is recommending application to the state for Green Acres or BOR (Federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation) money for one-half the estimated $70,000 cost of developing the site.

Mr. Moffat explained hastily that the steep dollar slope is traceable to fill dirt which was carelessly (and illegally) dumped into the site by a former owner.

Schematic drawings show a canoe rack big enough for 48 to 50 canoes, a place to park cars, a pavillion with lavatories, bike paths and so on, none of it firm and final.

Canoes would be rented by a concessionaire, Mr. Moffat explained. You could go canoeing either on the river or the canal.

Borough Shares Cost. The Borough paid part of the cost of acquiring the land, Mr. Moffat said, and if that municipality decides to go along with development, it would bring the price per town to $17,500, assuming BOR money. Plans were developed without charge by a licensed architect, Mr. Moffat said.

Originally, the narrow strip was eyed by the state as part of a canal-long park. But the state later said fill dirt had despoiled the area, and decided not to buy. It was willing, however, to help with the purchase.

In other action, Committee heard Mayor Jay Bleiman report that he and Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley had written the state of their "concern and dismay" over the cut-back of state plans for Battlefield Park. As it stands now, the state will only restore Clark House.

"We'd like to see Governor Byrne get people together with us and arrive at some level of funding, even if not for the whole state plan," Mayor Bleiman said.

Ordinance Delayed. An ordinance creating the Parking Authority of the Princeton Community was held back until the Township can confer with the Borough and West Windsor. Committee member William Sutphin said he'd expected a West Windsor contingent whose members would explain the Authority in that community, but nobody could make it to Township Hall Monday night.

Mr. Sutphin envisions dinky terminal parking for perhaps 100 cars to keep commuters from driving to the public West Windsor lots where, Mr. Sutphin said, "parking is overloaded and insufficient." The West Windsor Authority lot holds 400 cars and has a wailing list of 300 names, Mr. Sutphin said. An Authority could also examine parking in congested areas like the hospital, he suggested.

(Mayor Cawley said the next day that he and Council were "generally favorable" to the idea of more parking at the dinky station, and agreed with Mr. Sutphin that a larger parking area might be impressive as an argument for keeping the dinky going. "Park and Ride" lots might be constructed along major arteries like Route One, he suggested, or even along a future Loop Road.)

Committee unanimously passed the ordinance extending to one year (from six months) the time interval between a zoning variance and a building permit. The measure has Planning Board

Golda Gottlieb has resigned as a Township Planning Board representative and Walter Johnson will take her place for the remaining two months of her term. It is expected that he will then be named by Mayor Bleiman to a full term on the board which would start January 1. Mrs. Gottlieb, who now lives in the Borough, would then be appointed to a Borough seat on the board.

ON YEDLIN....

Decision Next Monday. No decision so far on the Yedlin public housing project: Township Committee said Monday night it hadn't been able to reach a decision on the appeal of opponents from Planning Board approval of revised site plans. Mayor Jay Bleiman said Committee would probably have a decision by next Monday's meeting (8 p.m., Township Hall.)

Meanwhile, four Township residents, in an open letter to Committee, say they are "disturbed" by the way Committee conducted last week's hearing. "We are specifically concerned with the nature of accusations made against the Township engineer, Joseph Hodak," the writers say.

They point out that Dwight O. North accused Mr. Hodak of "deliberately" giving false testimony to the Planning Board and compromising his professional standing by consulting with Mr. Yedlin's engineer.

"Such accusations go beyond verbal abuse and can only be described as calumnious," the writers continue. They declare that Committee should have placed specific limitations on arguments that would be admissable, and they ask Committee for a "public statement on the matter."

Committee did not comment on the letter Monday night. It was signed by Robert C. Hosford, Elaine Bezilla, Helen Fairbanks and Kay McGrath.

Committee also received a letter from James L. Green, 688 Ewing, opponent of the project, commenting in fuller detail on technical and legal aspects of various points made at the hearing.

Mr. Green chiefly asserts that Committee, when considering an appeal from the Planning Board, does not thereby become an appellate court with only judicial powers, but retains its legislative and executive powers and is legally entitled to change its mind.

Lost Time Made Up

The fact that summer
Was so wet,
Makes autumn seem the Best thing yet

Taking a backward glance at the summer of '75, Mother Nature has done a good deal to provide delightful weather in October Save for a wet Saturday last weekend, the month has been near perfect so far, with the thermometer around 80 on Tuesday

Clouds are scheduled to move into the picture and they may hold showers that could fall around Friday Temperatures will range from the low 40s at night to near 70 by day, and there is reason to expect a sunny, mild weekend

DINKY GETS HELP

From Congressman. "Substantial hope" exists that the dinky will be continued, said Barbara Sigmund, co-chairman of the Save-the-Dinky committee this week, after Pennsylvania Congressman Fred B. Rooney, chairman of the House Subcommittee on Transportation and Commerce, pledged his support for efforts to keep the line going.

Mrs. Sigmund conferred with Rep. Rooney in Washington on Friday. All railroad legislation that originates in the House starts with his subcommittee, and Mrs. Sigmund characterized his pledge as "One of the most important commitments we've gotten." Rep. Rooney represents a constituency in eastern Pennsylvania.

Next Monday, hearings start in the Senate on an omnibus bill that will amend the railroad organization act. New Jersey's Senator Harrison Williams is sponsoring S-2379 which will include passenger-saving provisions in this omnibus measure. Mrs. Sigmund and Save-the-Dinky co-chairman Edwin Hutter, will send written testimony to Senator Vance Hartke, chairman of the Surface Transportation Sub-Committee of the Senate Commerce Committee, in support of the measure.

She urged Princeton residents to write also in its support, and to write Rep. Rooney to support HR-9869, a parallel measure in the House.

In a written statement of support, Rep. Rooney declared,

"This is a serious problem for the Princeton community, and one which I shall be working to remedy as my Subcommittee gives further consideration to railroad reorganization legislation now before us."

"A most impressive case," he declared, has been presented by the brief prepared by Samuel Buffone of the Office of Public Counsel of the Interstate Commerce Commission's Rail Services Planning Office.

The Congressman cited the dinky's 900 to 1000 passengers per day, observing that many of them connect with rail passenger service on the Penn Central's New York-Philadelphia main line.

"While (the dinky) currently transports some freight," he commented, "it has the potential to attract increased freight shipments."

In her conversation with Rep. Rooney, Mrs. Sigmund reported, "I made clear to him that passenger branch lines are as important as freight lines."

Rep. Rooney also mentioned environmental factors in his statement of support. He pointed to testimony at Rail Service Planning Office hearings, as reported in the Office of Public Counsel report, that if the dinky were discontinued, there would be "substantial increase" in automobile usage and traffic congestion at the Princeton Junction station, 300 percent increase in fuel consumption and 680 percent increase in pollution levels.

While in Washington, Mrs. Sigmund also talked with George Chandler, former head of the Rail Services Planning Office and now an ICC official. He told her, she reported, that he will work with House and Senate subcommittees to make sure provisions for passenger service are included in the omnibus bill.

SCULPTURE IS GIVEN

To Princeton Foundation. Dorothea Greenbaum, nationally known sculptress with studios in Princeton, has presented the New Jersey Chapter of the Retinitis Pigmentosa Foundation with a bronze head entitled, "Blind Man."

The gift from Mrs. Greenbaum, whose own sight is failing, underscores the efforts of the RP Foundation, a volunteer organization dedicated to overcoming the blinding effects of retinal degenerative diseases.

The Trustees of the New Jersey RP Foundation, 12 Nassau Street, received the sculpture from Mrs. Greenbaum on behalf of the National Organization, which intends to exhibit the moving work in the reception area of the Berman Gund Laboratory of Harvard University at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary in Boston.

This multi-disciplined laboratory for the study of retinal degenerations was established a year ago through funds raised by the RP Foundation. The sculpture will represent a symbolic reminder of the urgent purpose of the laboratory's work.

TV, STEREO STOLEN

From Leigh Avenue Home. A $675 color television set was stolen between 7 and 8:30 Sunday evening from the home of James E. Green Jr., 60 Leigh Avenue.

Also taken were a stereo tuner, turntable and a base guitar. Total value of all items was $1700, police said. Entry was through an open kitchen window.

A log splitter valued at $850 and a motor mixer ($836.67) were stolen last week from Taylor Rental, 775 State Road.

According to manager David DeLourier, a chain connecting the missing items to other units outside the rental store had been cut. Ptl. David Cromwell investigated.

Further down at 55 State Road, Anthony Kozak, manager of Jack & Jill's, reported to police the theft of $253.56 from a cigarette cabinet in the back room. The theft took place between 4 and 6:30 Sunday afternoon, while the store was open.

A Whitehorse resident, Gerda Hazard, lost a $175 Navaho Indian necklace while she was shopping Saturday at Bamberger's in the Princeton Shopping Center.

Mrs. Hazard told police that she had hung her necklace with a silver and turquoise pendant on a wall hook while she was trying on a dress in a dressing room. After putting her clothes back on, she left her necklace behind. When she returned, it was gone.

MORE WALLETS STOLEN

On Campus. Borough police continue to list thefts occurring on the Princeton University campus.

A Lockhart Hall student lost $15 from her wallet Sunday when someone broke a pane of glass to unlock a window to enter her room. Earlier in the week, a student in 1903 Hall lost $130 when someone walked into her bedroom. Police said the money was taken from her wallet inside a jewelry box.

Another student, in a Firestone Library reading room last week, left her purse on a desk. When she returned 15 minutes later $25 and her University ID cards were missing.

A calculator valued at $120 was stolen last week, police report, from an unlocked room in Holder Hall.

In other thefts, a Harrison Street resident reported the loss Friday of a radio and tape deck from his car parked on Nassau near Maple, and a $40 battery was removed from a car parked at the rear of 239 Nassau.

FOUR ARE FINED

In Traffic Court. Four Princeton area residents were fined Monday in Borough traffic court.

William S. Heckscher, 32 Wilton Street, was fined $25 for a stop-sign violation; Anthony Ferrara, 25 Madison Street, $25 for careless driving; and Kurt E. Jones, 290 Greenview Avenue, Hopewell, $15, for a red light infraction. Christine Bowdren, Belle Mead, paid $10, late inspection.

A LITTLE FUND-RAISING: Democrats in the Borough will benefit from a "Meet-the-Candidates" party this Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Alexander Jr., 61 Westcott Road. The party will last from 5-8, and everyone is invited. Contributions are $5 per person, and there will be a cash bar. In this planning quartet are Mrs. Nina Alexander and candidates Gus Escher (Council); Jan Schneier (mayor) and Barbara Sigmund (Council). (Cliff Moore Photo)

GUN STOLEN HERE

Used In Franklin Twp. A .380 Colt pocket automatic, which was allegedly used to fire two shots into the door of a car in Franklin Township last week, was reported stolen from a Pine Street home in Princeton.

Ernest Walker, 23, of Edison, has been charged by Franklin police with carrying a concealed weapon and possession of stolen property. An investigation centering on the theft of a gun is being continued by Borough police.

POLICE FILE CHARGES

Against University Student. Roman Bitsuie, 21, of Lourie-Love Hall, Princeton University, has been charged by Borough police with being drunk and disorderly and with possession of stolen property.

Bitsuie allegedly stole a floor mat from the private car of Ptl. Bernard Lenhard which had been parked in the lot next to Borough Hall. Bitsuie was arrested last Wednesday evening after Ptl. William Fitch investigated a report that someone was in the police parking lot.

BOND ISSUE IS TOPIC

Housing Discussed on TV. Gus Escher, 34 Pine Street, Director of Research and Development for the New Jersey Housing Finance Agency, is scheduled to appear on Channel 13's "Dateline New Jersey" at 7 p.m. on Saturday, in a discussion of the housing and bond issue in the November elections.

DEMONSTRATION SET

Muhammed Ali to Aid Carter. World heavyweight boxing champion Muhammed Ali is scheduled to come to Trenton Friday in behalf of efforts to free Rubin "Hurricane" Carter. The champion will lead a statewide "Crusade Caravan" of demonstrators who will meet at 10 at the John Fitch Way Field behind the John Kerney Homes in Trenton.

Free bus transportation is available from the Princeton railroad station on University place, leaving at 7:30 and returning at noon. Demonstrators will go to the Trenton State Prison and the State House where they and Muhammed Ali will present up to 100,000 petitions to Governor Byrne asking to free Rubin Carter and John Carter. The two were convicted of murdering three persons in Patterson in 1966 but have always maintained their innocence.

Professor Steve M. Slaby of the civil engineering department at Princeton University is acting as a co-director of the demonstration.

TO DEDICATE ROOM

At University League. After a year or more of planning, fund raising and decorating, The Dorothy Brown Room at Princeton University League headquarters will be formally dedicated at a 5 p.m. reception Friday, October 24.

The wife of J. Douglas Brown, Provost and Dean of the Faculty, Emeritus, Dorothy Brown has been an active member of the University League for fifty years. She led in the establishment of the League's Nursery School, served as President of the League, and was Chairman of the Memorial Funds Committee.

In 1974, the University League's Board of Directors decided to honor Mrs. Brown by naming their main meeting room at 171 Broadmead "The Dorothy Brown Room." Headed by Mrs. David Coffin, 143 McCosh Circle, a committee was formed to raise money for the decoration of the room. Over 150 people contributed to the fund, and many others donated furnishings to create a comfortable meeting place for League members.

Mrs. Brown has also been a civic leader active in the League of Women Voters, Princeton Public Library, New Jersey Home for Boys, New Jersey Neuro-psychiatric Institute, Princeton PTA, Women's College Club of Princeton and Present Day Club. She was a founding member of the local Unitarian Church.

A social period, with refreshments and music by soprano Jean Thomas, will follow the formal dedication.

$2,000 PRESENTED

To Medical Center. Area residents combined a shopping spree with a hospital benefit this year to contribute more than $2,000 to the Princeton Medical Center.

Robert and Henry Landau of Landau's store presented a check for $2,022 to Medical Center president John W. Kauffman, representing the results of the store's annual rummage sale held Aug. 23.

Proceeds from the sale were used to cover expenses for a senior citizens' picnic earlier this year, with the remainder going to the Medical Center's building fund. The money will be used, Mr. Kauffman said, for new programs and equipment at the 419-bed Medical Center.

This year was the thirteenth for the sale itself, and the second benefitting The Medical Center. Staffing the Witherspoon Street store for the one-day event were volunteers from The Medical Center.

POSTAL RATES TO RISE

After Christmas. The U.S. Postal Service announced today temporary postal rates, including 13 cents for a first-class letter, will become effective December 28, in the event new permanent rates have not been recommended by the Postal Rate Commission prior to that time.

Major rate changes which will affect the general public are first class, from 10 to 13 cents for the first ounce and from 9 to 11 cents for each additional ounce for a letter, from 7 to 9 cents for a postal card, and from 13 to 17 cents for the first ounce of airmail. Parcel post rates will be increased an average of 10 per cent.

The increase in the special service fees is tentatively expected to become effective early in November, and most international mail rate changes are scheduled to take effect shortly after January 1. Postage for letters, printed matter, and small packets mailed to Canada and Mexico will increase on December 28, 1975, when temporary domestic rates become effective.

Stamps to be issued covering new rates will include a 13 cent stamp, an 11 cent stamp, a 24 cent stamp, and a 9 cent stamp for post cards.

PROTEST REGISTERED

By Hobler to Byrne. New Jersey has bought time from radio station WHWH to promote the bond issue. But station owner Herbert W. Hobler says he doesn't know -- or care — whether the state's decision to buy came before or after his blast against the state for not buying time from local stations and his comment that he would, therefore, be "as uncooperative as possible" and "possibly not endorse the bill."

Mr. Hobler said this week that the state bought time from 14 other stations as well.

The station-owner set forth his views in a letter to Assemblyman Walter Foran. In the letter, he wrote, "I am fed up and propose to once again publicly fight Democrats or Republicans who persist in going out of state so heavily in TV broadcast media because they simply don't understand."

"I was pushed against the wall," he said this week. "I thought of trying to tone down my letter, but on balance, I think we've made a good point, and the reaction from the public has been almost 100 percent favorable."

Mr. Hobler charges Governor Brendan T. Byrne and his predecessor, William T. Cahill, with turning first to New York and Philadelphia media and ignoring New Jersey radio stations.

Unfair Allocation. "When I saw a story that Byrne was planning to spend $250,000 to buy TV, newspaper and mass mailings, I blew my stack once more. They spend $140,000 to promote the lottery in New York and Philadelphia but only $40,000 with New Jersey stations. But we serve the state!"

He said Governor Byrne, at a press conference, told reporters Mr. Hobler was thinking of opposing the bond issue because little or no money was being spent on New Jersey radio.

"I never said that, and my letter never said that," Mr. Hobler said.

Asked whether he had heard from the Federal Communications Commission — a Trenton reporter had read parts of the Hobler letter to an FCC official — Mr. Hobler said "No, I haven't heard from the FCC and I won't."

"We don't take editorial positions very often," he said, "and I don't plan to take any position on the bond issue, for or against. But this doesn't mean we won't cover the news about the bond issues. I have every responsibility to cover the news about bond issue, and I will."

"There was no implied threat in what I wrote. I don't really give a damn if we don't get advertising dollars. But I do give a damn if we don't get to cover the news properly. It is not a question of dollars, it's a question of principle."

SERVICE TO BEGIN

To Aid The Homebound. The Princeton Community Homemaker Service, has announced the revitalization of "The Volunteer Friendly Visitor Service" for residents of Cranbury, East Windsor, Griggstown, Hightstown, Kingston, Montgomery, Plainsboro, Rocky Hill, West Windsor and adjacent areas of Hopewell, Lawrence, and South Brunswick Township. There is no charge for this service.

This service is designed to bring "friendship with understanding" to homebound individuals and their families. The visitor will visit individuals of any age who, because of chronic illness, physical handicaps, or life circumstances are alone and in need of companionship.

The visitors will be well-informed persons who enjoy making neighborly calls and serving the community. Men and women with daytime or early evening hours to spare serve as volunteers.

By reading aloud, helping with correspondence, playing a game, sharing a hobby, talking about people and places, they help fill some of the tedious hours that confront the homebound. They also provide some much needed free time for over-burdened family members.

When possible, the visitor and those being visited will be matched based upon similar interests.

Training sessions will be held on November 10, 13, 17 and 20 from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at the Princeton Council of Community Services, 221 Witherspoon Street. This course will help to equip volunteers with understanding, skills and self-confidence. It will be taught by professionals from the fields of health and social work.

Individuals from clubs, churches, and other organizations are welcome to attend the training program.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer or desiring the services of a visitor should call Princeton Community Homemaker Service at 924-5862 weekdays between 8 and 4.

Re-Cycling Cycles Back to the Township

You can re-cycle again in the Township. This time, it's do-it-yourself, but that means the schedule is yours. You've got from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays, which ought to be time enough for anybody. Next Monday, October 20, will be the first day.

Take your newspapers (no magazines), glass and cans to the new four-room shed in the northeast corner of the Shopping Center, on the periphery of the Bamberger parking lot.

The "rooms" are walk-in shelters, two for newspapers, one each for cans and glass. Here are the rules:

NEWSPAPERS: Put them in supermarket shopping bags (they fit nicely) or tie them with string in bundles no thicker than 18 inches. Magazines are out because of the dye.

GLASS: Wash the glass, and sort it into clear, brown and green. You don't have to remove the labels. Bins will show you which to put where.

CANS: Wash them, and divide them into two piles: beer and soda in one (these are usually aluminum) and food cans in the other. Flatten the food cans, if possible. The others shouldn't be flattened.

Mice and yellow-jackets will be drawn to dirty glass or cans so be sure to wash what you bring.

The shed was designed by W.J. Shinn, the Township's zoning officer, and built by John Clausen of the Township staff. Members of the engineering department did the drawings.

"Every ton we re-cycle saves $6 in landfill expenses," says Township Committee member Margaret Broadwater. She'll be weighing in next Monday at 8 a.m.

LEAGUE TO RUN FAIRS Candidates Will Debate. The next two weeks will see the Princeton Area League of Women Voters sponsor Candidates' Fairs in Princeton, West Windsor and Montgomery Townships. The format will be more informal and family oriented than in previous years.

Refreshments will be served, and the candidates will be available for informal discussion. Videotaped debates of Mercer County Executive and Freeholder candidates (taped by the West Windsor-Plainsboro High School Students) will be on view beginning at 3:30. Babysitting will be provided by Girl Scout Troop 680, and free campaign literature, balloons, and refreshments will be available. For further information, call Rhea Bell at 799-2312.

Princeton Borough and Township will invite families to their Fair on the same day at 2, at Community Park School. Live debates will take ploace among the candidates for Borough Mayor and Council from 2-3:30, while the candidates for Township Committee will debate from 3:45-4:45. Throughout the afternoon, there will be simultaneous and continuous videotapes.

Princeton High School Students organized, moderated and taped a debate among the 124th District Assembly candidates, while West Windsor-Plainsboro and Peddie School Students produced tapes of the Mercer County and Freeholder candidates. All the candidates have been invited and will be available for informal discussions. There will be free babysitting, balloons, campaign literature and cider and donuts provided. For more information call Chrystal Schivell at 924-5238.

The Montgomery-Rocky Hill Candidates' Fair will be held Sunday, October 26, from 3-4:30 at the Rocky Hill Library. A round robin discussion with local and county candidates will take place downstairs while supervised program of films, ice cream and treats will occupy younger children in the upstairs portion of the Library. For more information, call Marie Smith at 924-3148.

WOMEN VOTERS ACTIVE: Planning the League of Women Voter's Candidates Fairs are from left Rhea Bell, West Windsor; Chrystal Schivell, Princeton; and Marie Smith, Montgomery. Princeton and West Windsor Fairs will be held next Sunday. Montgomery's Candidates Fair will be held Sunday, October 26.

BEADING SCHEDULED By Children's Author. Children's book author Avi Wortis will give a reading Monday at 7:30, at Princeton Public Library for children aged 6-14.

Author of "No More Magic," just published by Pantheon, and two earlier books, "Snail Tale" and "Things that Sometimes Happen," Mr. Wortis has worked as a public librarian in London and at the New York Public Library at Lincoln Center. Since 1970 he has been Humanities Librarian at Trenton State College, where he teaches children's literature.

An avid collector of old children's books, Mr. Wortis lives in Lambertville with his wife, who is a weaver, and their two sons.

FLOWER ARRANGING Japanese Style. Audrey Jocelyn of New York City will give a demonstration of Japanese flower arranging Thursday, at 1, at the Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill Road. Miss Jocelyn is the owner of the Flower Arrangers Shop on East 58th Street and heads Flower Arrangers School.

After studying various schools of "Ikebana" in Japan, she decided to concentrate on the "Sogetsu School" and has written, lectured and taught both western and Japanese flower arranging. Her demonstration will be followed by a question and answer period.

Babysitting may be arranged by calling Debbie Eltz, 921-3449. A $2 donation will be appreciated, and a sign up sheet will be available for those wishing to attend a workshop at a later date.

There's a Princeton in your future...

Will it look like this

or like this?

Mini-anyplace

— Fifty-four percent population increase by 1990.
— Designation of residential property for "cluster villages."
— Growth patterns imposed with no regard for the shape of our land or the flow of our streams.

That's the advice the Planning Board was given for charting our future.

— We think the assumptions are wrong.
— We believe Princeton can't afford forced growth.
— We believe road-and-sewer sprawl creates overdevelopment.

So does the New Jersey Department of Community Affairs.
So does the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.
Big government is wising up. When will ours?

In the Township it's time to make some hard decisions.

ANNUAL HOUSE TOUR SCHEDULED: Mrs. H. Kempton Hastings, Mrs. Robert H. Johnson and Mrs. Robert S. Bennett, Jr., Co-Chairmen of Christmas in Princeton, invite your participation in the Tour of Houses and Christmas Shops on Tuesday, December 2 from 10 to 4 for the benefit of the New Jersey Neuro-Psychiatric Institute.

PATRONS ARE SOUGHT

For NJNPI House Tour. The Association of the New Jersey Neuro-Psychiatric Institute is seeking patrons for its Christmas in Princeton 1976. Five homes in the area will be opened to the public from 10 to 4 on Tuesday, December 2. The Christmas Shops will be at the Hun School where light refreshments will be served and a fascinating selection of gifts will be on sale.

The house tour will include: an ultra modern town house owned by Mrs. Susan Ring Abrams; casual living in a delightful country setting will be the theme of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Erdman; "Glenviron" the handsome pre-revoluntionary fieldstone home of Mr. and Mrs. R. George Kuser, Jr.; Maclean House, a true bicentennial gem, owned by Princeton University was designed by Robert Smith who was the architect for Nassau Hall and the Charles Steadman designed home of Mr. and Mrs. K.B. Outerbridge a fine example of mid-19th century architecture.

Tickets may be purchased from Mrs. Raymond Rudy, 26 Moore Street, Princeton, N.J. 08540, by sending a check for $7.50 with a stamped self-addressed envelope. The ticket includes the five homes and the Christmas Shops and all proceeds benefit The New Jersey Neuro-Psychiatric Institute.

QUARRY PARK? YES

Board Affirms Decision. In a three-page resolution adopted last Tuesday night, the Princeton Regional Planning Board affirmed for the umpteenth time that it would like to see a park on the Old Quarry site, at the dead-end of Spruce Street.

The resolution, requested by Borough Council and Mayor Robert W. Cawley, will now go to Howard Wolf, chief of the grant administration program of the state's Department of Environmental Protection. The Borough has asked for Green Acres money to help buy the land, and has wanted the quarry for a park since 1967.

In other action, the Planning Board, at Mercer County Planning Board request, passed a resolution supporting the idea of a grade-separated intersection in Clarksville, where a giant new shopping center is under construction. "Grade separation" means that traffic is on different levels. The county feels this will be essential for safety after the center has been completed and is in operation.

The board also told Christopher Tarr he doesn't have to install underground utilities on his State Road lot.

ONE HEALTH BOARD?

Borough's to Vote. If you're interested in consolidation of Borough and Township boards of health, you're invited to next Tuesday's meeting of the Borough Board of Health at 8 p.m. in Borough Hall.

The board is scheduled to vote on merger with the Nini Chrysler-Plymouth proudly presents the new Chryslers and Plymouths for '76.

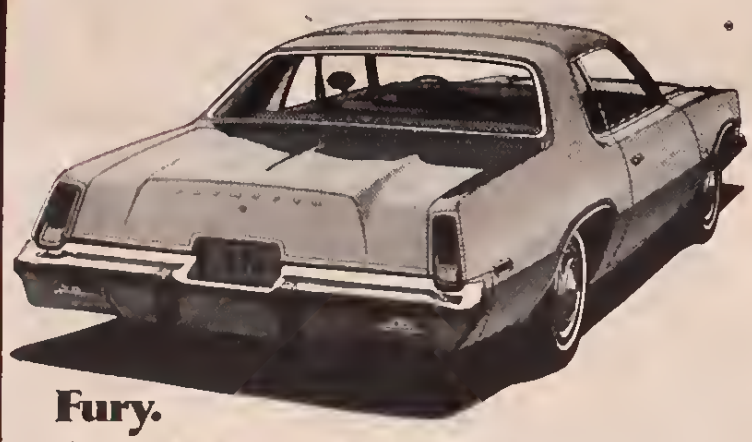
Plymouth Duster.

Duster, a small car that's big on room.

Duster seats five, not four, like so many other small cars. And out back, Duster gives you a big family-size trunk with over 19 cubic feet of trunk space — the biggest in its class! You also get good small-car economy. Big on economy, big on room. That's Duster.



Fury.

Not too large, not too small. It's just right for '76.

The '76 Fury gives you the economy of a mid-size car. But it seats six, like a full-size car, without the full-size car price. Beautiful!

WHERE THE BIRDS ARE: A new book, "The Birds of New Jersey: Their Habits and Habitats," just published by the Rutgers University Press, is a guide for people wondering where and when to see birds known to spend some part of their existence in New Jersey. Written by Dr. Charles Leck of Princeton, Rutgers ornithologist, the book tells where to find the more-than-400 species recorded in the state since 1832, when John James Audubon began his work here.

Princetonian Provides Tips on Bird-Watching; Number of Known Species in State Totals 410

Bird watchers in New Jersey enjoy a good vantage point for observing the great fall migrations, a Rutgers zoologist says in a new book for bird enthusiasts.

"Any person who actively enjoys bird-watching," says Dr. Charles Leck, associate professor of zoology at Rutgers College, "can easily find more than 200 species in New Jersey in any year." Further, he notes, "the state benefits from its geographic position on the Atlantic Flyway," and is "probably the best location on the eastern coast to observe the great fall imigrations" which are now underway..

The book is "The Birds of New Jersey: Their Habits and Habitats," just published by the Rutgers University Press.

Dr. Leck who lives at 37 Chestnut Street, points out that John James Audubon's presence in New Jersey in 1832 was the beginning of the study of birds in the state. New Jersey has a "greater density of bird-watchers than any other state," so that New Jersey ranks high in the number of known species, with 410 recorded.

A PHS Atumnus. Dr. Leck admits that he can't remember when he wasn't interested in birds. Growing up around Princeton, where he was born, he saw lots of birds in nearby fields and woods. "My parents took me on a great number of field trips throughout the state when I was starting to learn about New Jersey birds," he states in the preface of the book. He also credits his biology teacher at Princeton High School, Bill Alston, for encouragement and for being his "first partner in New Jersey Christmas counts."

Dr. Leck's book is not an identification manual, he makes clear. "It is a companion to one's field guide," he adds.

"New Jersey has a rich diversity of birds from a wide variety of natural communities. It has large areas of ocean, beach, pine forest, deciduous forest, salt marsh, fields, and scattered freshwater marshes, ponds, lakes, bogs, and mountain ridges.

"At least fifty percent of the state is still in a fairly natural condition, though the population is highly urbanized."

Where They All Are. The bulk of "Birds of New Jersey" is divided into eight chapters, each a discussion of a different bird community in the state. Thus, the reader can learn about the birds and environments of Island Beach State Park; Brigantine National Wildlife Refuge; the Pine Barrens; the Institute Woods of Princeton, where the tradition of walking in the woods for relaxation was begun by Albert Einstein; Hutcheson Memorial Forest property of Rutgers on Amwell Road in Somerset County; Johnson Park in New Brunswick; Great Swamp National Wildlife Refuge; and High Point State Park and Stokes State Forest.

Dr. Leck has divided the identified New Jersey birds into permanent residents, winter residents, summer residents and transient species, and tables of each list the pertinent species. He also describes the phenomenon of the "Christmas Bird Count" and "Big Day Counts."

Of interest is his account of the change that took place on a Christmas day at the beginning of the century.

"It was once the custom to go hunting on Christmas day and shoot as many birds as possible, or at least a good potful. At the beginning of the century the National Audubon Society sought to change this custom into the sport of bird-watching — getting people to hike and observe as many birds as possible during one day.

"The sport took hold, and today more than twenty thousand participants engage in the annual activity.

Census-Taking. The "Big Day Counts" involve one day during mid-May when bird watchers try to see as many species of birds as possible within a given area. It requires being in the field from well before dawn to dusk and to cover a wide range of habitats.

"Big Day Counts" now are regarded as competitions. Edwin Stearns, formerly of Westfield and now retired in South Carolina, is the current State Champion, having twice counted 176 species in a single day, in 1956 and 1959. The maximum for a single party of bird-watchers is 186 species, set in eastern New Jersey in 1957.

Beginners, Dr. Leck suggests, should regard a goal of 100 species as a reasonable challenge. "The Birds of New Jersey: Their Habits and Habitats" will tell them where to look.

SHOW AND TELL SET

On Oriental Rugs at YMCA. An Oriental Rug "Show and Tell" will be held at the YMCA Wednesday, October 22, at 8, to which individuals may bring their rugs or may just come to learn more about oriental rugs. Resource persons will include Robert H. Kahn, 106 Alexander Street, an antique rug dealer, as well as Donald N. Wilbur, Middle East authority, and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Westcott. Mr. Westcott is the president of the Haji Bab Rug Society.

A donation is requested to benefit YMCA youth programs. Telephone reservations are requested.

ACTIVITIES LISTED

For Children At Library. A Magic Show has been planned for Wednesday, October 29, at 4, in the Meeting Room of the Princeton Public Library. Princeton magicians, Jimmy Gibson and Buck Rogers, both 12 years old, will perform for children ages 4-9. Tickets are available at the children's desk on a first come first served basis.

The Groovy Movies on Thursday, October 30, at 3:30, are "Trooping the Color," a film of the famous House Guards Parade in London, and "Watch Out for My Plant," the story of a innercity boy's struggle to grow a flower. Both films are suggested for ages 6-12.

Book Break, a weekly book discussion group, continues on Friday, October 31, at 3:30.

SALE PLANNED

Of Children's Items. The Cherry Hill Nursery School, seeking to raise money for the School's scholarship fund, is sponsoring a sale of second-hand children's items on October 25, 10 to 4, at the Unitarian Church, Rte. 206 and Cherry Hill Roads.

Since Cherry Hill is a non-profit and cooperative school, the parents and faculty have combined their efforts to solicit and collect children's clothes, toys, furniture, books, as well as maternity clothes. The sale is a new project for Cherry Hill, which every year attempts to raise enough money to provide several scholarships. All items will be clean and in good repair. During the last two hours of the sale, the remaining articles will be specially reduced.

THERAPY GROUP SET

For Divorced Persons. A therapy group for divorced persons will be conducted by the Community Guidance Center of Mercer County at its Whitney Center, 253 Nassau Street, in Princeton, on Wednesday evenings at 8 P.M.

The group will offer its members a chance to gradually attain a better understanding of themselves and others in a supportive atmosphere. Applications are still being accepted from divorced persons who feel that they could benefit from this kind of experience. For further information, call 924-2896.

Beyond the Call of Duty.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

I feel that it's about time someone spoke up in praise of the Princeton Borough Police Department. In all the years of moving about the country, I have never encountered a more congenial and efficient police force.

On the occasions that I have had to enlist their assistance they could not have been more courteous and helpful, even when it appeared that the problem was relatively minor. As a case in point, the other evening I inadvertently locked my keys in my car and I called the police department for permission to leave the car on the street overnight until I could contact a locksmith.

Not only did the police volunteer to help, but the officer who was dispatched on the case persevered for over half an hour before the lock finally gave way. Not once during the whole episode was the officer condescending or patronizing - indeed, he seemed to consider the problem more of a challenge than a chore. From what I gather from the reports of other Princeton residents this professional attitude reflects the approach of the entire department.

In an age where impersonality seems the rule rather than the exception, the people of Princeton should be proud of their police force for having achieved a unique relationship with the public. At the risk of using a cliche, I feel the Borough Department deserves recognition for consistently acting "above and beyond the call of duty," and I would like to thank them publicly for being a police force I can rely on.

Scholarships for Adult School
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Continuing one's education is one of the great pleasures of life.

The Princeton Adult School has, since 1939, provided many opportunities for the people of this area to do just that.

I was reading the Adult School's 1975 Fall Program Booklet recently and was wondering what happens to individuals who might want to take a course but can afford only part of the fee or none of the fee? There is no mention of any scholarship funds being available to help defray all or part of the costs.

I think adults who want to get their high school equivalency diplomas should be given every encouragement to do so.

If some group would find it worthwhile to start a fund for scholarships, I would be glad to help.

Rummage Sale Successful.
To the Editor, Town Topics:

We are very happy to announce that we have enjoyed another successful Rummage Sale for the benefit of the Medical Center at Princeton. However, without the support of many people, this would not have been possible. We are grateful to the merchants and residents who contributed so generously and to all those who came to buy.

A special thanks must go to the host of volunteers who gave hours of hard work for this worthy project. The efforts of all who assisted in any way are deeply appreciated.

Medical Center Appreciated.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

I have been a recent patient at the Princeton Medical Center which was my first time although I have been there for X-rays and other services.

I was under the care of two of the finest physicians and gentlemen anyone could have had. I think that the Medical Center is fortunate in having such outstanding specialists on their staff.

In addition I must also give praise to the general staff of nurses particularly and other services provided me. It was my experience to be a rather rush patient as I had no reservation and the Center being filled for private and semi - private rooms so was placed in room 315 until a private room was available, no. 128 a couple of days later.

Never in my experience in any hospital and I have been a patient in such prominent and excellent hospitals such as Royal Victoria in Montreal and the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston, Massachusetts where services provided by nurses and others was excellent, but at the Princeton Medical Center it was just outstanding.

The nursing staff were so competent, pleasant at all times, on call quickly night and day, and the courtesy shown by all which includes maid service, etc. was simply perfect and this a wonderful tonic for anyone who is unfortunate enough to be ill. It further proves the able selection and training of everyone particularly these grand nurses.

I know that there are some people who complain but should they to me I will advise them of my experience there and what an efficient Medical Center it is. The selection of staff and supervision is in most capable hands.

I think that the Princeton Medical Center should be congratulated for the efficient and outstanding job they are doing. I also want to express my sincere thanks to all the staff for both rooms who made my stay so pleasant and successful.

A Wonderful Place.
To the Editor:

Thank you, Princeton, for Merwick with Dr. Klaskin, physical therapists Beverly and Kevin, and all the wonderful people who work there and show that they care; for The Public Library, with their helpful, kind help, not only for book loans, but in any way I need assistance; for the young people with their friendly smiles and hellos in the streets; for the treelined streets and the public transportation and when needed, the great community services like homemakers, meals on wheels and visiting nurses.

Yes, I find Princeton a beautiful place to live.

Schneier Stand Backed.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Following is a copy of my letter to Jan Schneier, Democratic candidate for Mayor of Princeton Borough:

Dear Jan,

I was glad to read of the stand you are taking on two crucial issues for the Borough; one, your determination to appeal, with the support of the Democratic caucus of the Borough Council, the Senate bill 1516, and second, that consideration of consolidation should be postponed until this matter is resolved. S.1516, with its shifting of the per pupil-rateable base, will move $435,000 in taxation from the Township to the Borough, if it proves to be constitutional. To add to this the probable cost to the Borough taxpayer of consolidation, whatever the merits of this move may otherwise be, would be unbearable to many long-time Princeton residents.

We have already seen the gradual attrition of lifelong Princeton residents due to general inflation, and most specifically the ever-rising taxes. The increasing elimination of diversity in the population of this most charming of towns is not a matter to be taken lightly. I know that these are questions to which you are sensitive, and I appreciate your taking a stand at this critical time.

Bicentennial License Plates Now Available -- May Be Bolted over Front Tag until Feb. '77

The brand-new New Jersey Bicentennial commemorative license plates are now available for sale to the public, the State Bicentennial Commission has announced.

The plates proclaiming New Jersey as the "Crossroads of the Revolution" must be used to cover the front license plates on motor vehicles. They will retail for $3 each and may be displayed until February 1, 1977.

The plates will be marketed statewide only through county and municipal Bicentennial commissions and volunteer service, civic and other approved non-profit organizations. Profits received by the organizations will fund local Bicentennial projects.

Former Gov. Robert B. Meyner, chairman of the State Bicentennial Commission, said:

"This program provides the opportunity both for a visible expression of pride in the rich historical heritage of our State and for helping to fund important Bicentennial projects at the grass-roots level."

The special Bicentennial license program was authorized by the Legislature and marks the first time that New Jersey has allowed motor vehicles on the road with one regular license plate covered.

The plates will be made available to eligible sponsoring organizations at the wholesale price of $1.41 each in lots of 60.

The new plate has a white background with the official New Jersey Bicentennial logo silk screened on it in red and blue. The slogan "Crossroads of the American Revolution" across the top of the plate represents a salute to the decisive battles and events on New Jersey soil that led to American independence.

The Bicentennial plate must be bolted over the license plate at the front of the vehicle only and must cover the regular plate, not be attached above or below it. The regular plate must not be removed. Full instructions appear on a label in the back of each Bicentennial plate.

The contract to market, distribute and promote the plates has been awarded on the basis of competitive bids to Petrick Associates of Somerset, a public relations, advertising and management firm. The firm has established a distribution headquarters in the State Bicentennial Commission building at 379 West State Street, Trenton.

Non-profit organizations eligible to participate can get details of the program by writing or telephoning the Bicentennial Commemorative Plates Office at that address. The phone number is (201) 247-6667.

The plates may be picked up at the Trenton office from 9 to 5 daily and from 10 to 2 on Saturdays.

News from Princeton Community Village

Calling All Green Thumbs

Mr. Townsend Scudder of Ambleside Gardens is giving a series of Thursday evening lectures on gardening for the home to be held at PCV. One evening will be devoted to trees — which ones grow well in this area and how to plant them properly. The lectures cost $10.00 for the series or $4.00 each. Proceeds from this project will go to the Village Landscaping Committee for plants and shrubs. . . . Speaking of which, Tae Sun Revere, Ethel McCulloch and Ruth Dilley have volunteered to lead the Village Landscaping Committee and welcome gardening enthusiasts for design suggestions and help in planting.

Children's Activity Groups Forming

Village children will soon have no shortage of outdoor activities thanks to several industrious parents. Lamont Fletcher is exploring the possibility of putting together a Trail Finding/Hiking Group. Sandra Spruill is contacting interested children to form a Precision Marching Team.

Several men in the Village, under the direction of Superintendent Jack Scott, are going to cut down the dead trees on the borders of the property. They plan to sell the wood as firewood and use the proceeds to finance basketball backboards for the kids.

Meet Your Councilmen

At a recent Village meeting, elections were held for representatives to serve on the Residents' Council. Elected members include: Tae Sun and Evans Revere, and Marion and Dennis Sullivan from Tupelo Row; Sherry and Ralph deThomas and Margaret Owens from Butternut Row; and Jackie Watson and Lamont Fletcher from Red Oak Row.

The next Village meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, October 15 at 6:00 p.m.

Open House a Success

October 5th marked the official opening of Princeton Community Village. Over 500 Princeton area residents turned out to visit the Village, meet the people who have already moved in, and enjoy a Sunday afternoon in their town's "new neighborhood." A number of Village residents volunteered to act as hostesses.

For information on eligibility requirements and to see the townhouses now available for rent, call Marcy Crimmins or Lucy Graves at 921-1686.

University Plans Major Expansion of Use Of Its Facilities for Summer Conferences

Princeton University plans to expand greatly its summer conference attendance next summer by offering a package deal of room, meal plan and conference space for approximately 8,000 to 10,000 conferees spread over the three summer months.

Bernard Gavin, Director of Facilities and Services at the University, reports that four conferences of 1,000 to 2,200 people each have been definitely booked, with two or three more tentatively reserved. His room rental goal is 60,000 "man-nights."

Last summer there was one four-day conference involving 600 people. During their stay, the University Store reported a rush on items carrying tiger emblems.

Mr. Gavin said the conferees for the most part would be housed in dormitories such as Holder and Hamilton on the main campus and use Commons for the meal plan. Princeton Inn College, formerly a conference center when it was an inn, would also be used but not to the same extent as the Nassau Street locations.

Mr. Gavin was reluctant to assign a dollar figure to the venture, which will require that undergraduates remove from their rooms all except university-owned furniture. The plan is conceived as a source of additional revenue to the University for the use of vacation-idle facilities. Questioned as to the impact on the town's economy, he said there was no doubt in his mind that every conferee "would have a positive effect on local business."

October 28th & 30th: Hear Merrill Lynch tell how to manage your money in today's changing economy

Mail the coupon below for tickets to the Merrill Lynch Seminar: "How to Manage Your Money in Today's Changing Economy." It's free, but seating is limited, so mail today.

Not just another lecture

This Seminar is your chance to learn better ways to invest your money from professionals. Absolutely free.

Some topics we'll cover: What to do with money you want to keep safe. How to get high interest without tying up your money. An investment you should avoid if you're in a high tax bracket. And more.

You'll also receive a free copy of "Investments For a Changing Economy" —a 16-page booklet with facts and figures to help you decide which investments you should choose and avoid—right now.

Are you bullish on America?

The past year can be summed up in one word: change. The way to go might be stocks one day, Treasury Bills the next. Or an investment tactic you've never heard of before.

But this flurry of change has also brought new opportunities. For high interest. Growth. Steady income. And for small investors to participate in markets that had never before been available to them. We haven't pulled in our horns. Merrill Lynch is bullish on America.

Come to the Seminar. It's free. But seating is limited. Send coupon for tickets and reserved seats now.

Time, Date and Location:

We've scheduled two seminars. Take your pick:

Tuesday, October 28th, 8:00 p.m.

or

Thursday, October 30th, 8:00 p.m.

ORGANISTS TO MEET

Eight Programs Set. "Music at All Saints" is the first program in a series of eight to be presented by the Central New Jersey Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. Nancianne Parrella, of the Princeton Regional Schools staff, is the newly-elected dean of the chapter.

The program will be given at All Saints next Monday at 8 p.m. David Agler, organist and choir director, will give an overview of All Saints' music program, which combines the talents of guest musicians with those of choir and congregation.

Future AGO programs will feature William Scheide, founder and conductor of the Bach Aria Group, "So You're Putting on a Bicentennial Service," with Lee H. Bristol, "An Evening with Eric Routley," British author, theologian and musician, and a tour of organs installed in the homes of AGO members.

Additional information is available from Ms. Parrella at 799-3424, or Phyllis Cooper, 799-2106.

MEETING PLANNED

To Honor Hospital Reopening. As part of a major celebration to honor the reopening of the Mt. Scopus Medical Center in Israel, the Princeton Chapter of Hadassah plans a meeting Wednesday, October 22, at 8:15 in the Jewish Center of Princeton.

Dr. Ruth Avny, a former Princeton resident who currently works in the Department of Social and Community Medicine at Hadassah Medical Organization, Israel, will be the featured speaker. Dr. Avny holds an M.D. degree from Hadassah Medical School, a master's degree in public health and is the mother of four children. She will share her perspective of Mt. Scopus from a close working knowledge.

A film entitled "If I Forget Thee," a history of Mt. Scopus, will be shown and an appropriate "Bicentennial Minute" will be presented. Hadassah members whose dues are paid are eligible for a drawing of a $10 gift certificate good at any of the Marketplace Shops on Route 27. The drawing will take place at the meeting, and members must be present to participate.

Refreshments will be served by Mesdames Maxine Farmer, Mimi Gershen and Estelle Golomb. Further information and rides may be obtained by calling Mrs. Anne Lower, 799-3685.

FIVE-MILE WALK SET

To Aid CROP on Sunday. The CROP Walk for Hunger on Sunday will start at Trinity Church, 33 Mercer Street, at 2, and will be a five-mile walk around Princeton and Princeton Township.

The money raised by the walkers will be used by CROP in one of the many projects in more than 30 countries to help fight hunger. CROP estimates that $5 raised will buy 125 packets of vegetable seeds, enough for a small village to plant a community garden.

CROP walkers ask sponsors to pledge anywhere from ten cents to ten dollars for each mile walked. Sponsors support a walker or several walkers with pledges per mile. Contributions to CROP are tax deductible. Call the CROP office, 924-6466 to offer support or volunteer to be a walker.

BULLETINS

The United Methodist Women of the Princeton Methodist Church will hold a Fall Rummage Sale Thursday, October 23, in the lower level of the church, Nassau and Vandeventer Streets, from 9-5 and on Friday, October 24, from 9-3. Mrs. George Beck is chairman.

The "Treasure Trove" featuring merchandise of high quality or nearly new articles will again be held. Many items will be reduced to half-price at noon Friday, when customers may also fill a bag for $1. The sale ends promptly at 3.

The Aide Society of the Kingston United Methodist Church will sponsor a Bazaar at 10 a.m. Saturday, October 25, at the church, followed by the Annual Fall Dinner starting at 4:30. A donation of $4 is requested of adults, $2 for children under 12.

The Association's 28-minute film "Land Is Not A Product," will also be shown.

Its purpose is to provide evaluation, stimulation counseling, education, therapy and support to the child and family through regular home visits by a staff consisting of a developmental therapist, social worker, and home trainers. Also available are the services of a psychologist, psychiatrist, pediatrician, speech and physical therapists and other specialists for evaluative and therapeutic purposes.

The program is one of the pre-school services offered by Project Child, which is directed by Peter Buermann, psychologist, and sponsored by the Ewing Township public schools. Anyone interested in further information or assistance may call 882-1475.

THE 1975 FUEL-INJECTED FOX BY AUDI

Fuel-injection?

That's what spurts the Fox from 0-50 in 8.0 seconds.

Not one Detroit economy car has fuel-injection. Not one has front-engine, front-wheel drive. So not one has the sure-footed traction of the Fox. Not one has torsion crank rear suspension for better road feel. Not one has dual-diagonal brakes. Yet 5 foxy folks fit into a Fox easily. It has 18.3 cubic feet of trunk. Genuine luxury. The Fox. It takes one to know one.

Country Contemporary in the Bedens Brook Area

Just a few minutes from downtown Princeton yet hidden away in a private country setting is a fantastic single level contemporary with a creatively designed floorplan. At one end is a heated large indoor swimming pool with patio and sauna, while at the other is a delightful master suite that ccan be cordoned off for either long term guests or a separate in-law arrangement. Both the huge flagstone library-study and the family room have their own fireplaces while the kitchen and living room have a view of the pool. There are four or five bedrooms in all and four full baths. By simply renting out one room to a university student who might also cut your grass, you can live in a fantastic contemporary for the same monthly payments as you'd pay in a seventy thousand dollar home. Asking $109,000

If you're looking for a new home near Princeton, come see this exceptional center hall colonial first: you'll save on all the improvements and hard work, and be able to spend your valuable time taking vacations or playing tennis instead of working around the house. Mildew... Mold... Insects... Bad Odors...

Protecting your things from nicks, dents and scratches is only part of our job. We think it's just as important that we keep your belongings spotlessly fresh and clean. So we treat our vans and the pads we use with the famous SANITIZED* process. A unique precaution that assures the freshness of everything you own. For a really "clean get-away" on moving day, call us.

Chelsea scarlet coats, authentic tricorns. Masthead lights, large, copper, a pair or singly. An early saddle bag of leather. Good little sterling bracelets, not old, but desirable and reasonable. Unusually large assortment of napkin rings, sterling and Sheffield. 12 alike coin spoons by James Mix, about 1810, in original hand sewn container (rarely are 12 ever found alike). A Tiffany carving set, large and sharp, and an endearly worn small older set of old Steiff (suggest you price a modern Steiff from Williamsburg). What's a County Executive? Read All About It!

"It's a good thing."

Mercer County's two candidates for the new post of County executive are at least agreed on that point: that the new form of government for Mercer County is a good thing.

After the November election, the county will have a new governmental structure with a County Executive at the top. Mercer has never had such an executive before. The Executive, to be elected by all the voters on a county-wide basis, will be to the Board of Chosen Freeholders what a strong mayor is to a council.

Two people are running for the new job. One is Democrat Arthur R. Sypek who has been a Mercer County Freeholder for 16 years and Freeholder Director for nine. The other is Republican W. Harry Sayen (pronounced "sine"), Princeton resident and a member of the Mercer County Charter Study Commission that recommended the governmental change.

Each man says the tax-budget question is a paramount one. Each man cites the size of the county budget -- $41 million -- and declares that only he has the administrative experience to run it properly.

To back up that claim, Mr. Sypek points to his years as Freeholder (his business is real estate, insurance and income-tax work in the firm of Sypek and Sandford) and Mr. Sayen refers to his work as executive with Mercer Rubber Company, which is in Hamilton Township.

Much of the county's budget is "mandated" -- that is, the county is told by the state to finance certain things and has no choice in the matter. Mr. Sypek says 70 percent of the budget falls into this category, Mr. Sayen says the figure is 55 percent.

Protecting the Dollar. "I would immediately institute this November the concept of zero-base budgeting," Mr. Sypek declares. "Every program and every agency would have to justify every single dollar. No amount of existing need would be 'assumed.' Tax dollars are the name of the game."

Mr. Sypek also proposes to centralize all administrative support services. If agencies remained independent, their personnel, finance and other administrative services would all be handled through a central department of administration and finance.

"Administrative costs in Mercer are 50 percent higher than they are in Monmouth, Middlesex or Burlington counties," Mr. Sayen says. "I would take a hard look, department by department, and make each one prove why they need money. The 'fat' in the county budget is in those administrative costs, and people don't realize 30 percent of their tax dollar goes to the county."

"Mercer's per-capita costs are $1 less than the state average," Mr. Sypek declares, "and we are very much pleased about that. It's unfair to pick up an item of a budget and say 'it's higher than in other places.' Smaller counties like Mercer have the same fixed expenses as bigger counties. Middlesex, for example, has a population of 600,000 compared to our 300,000."

Main Issues Cited. The two main issues, Mr. Sypek believes, "are credibility and the ability of the candidate to administer. He attacks Mr. Sayen for incomplete financial disclosure."

"He hasn't declared his income tax or his assets, and he should have the courage to do so." he says, "I have disclosed such things as a $10,000 loan." He adds that he supports the "sunshine" law and has urged Governor Brendan T. Byrne to sign it.

"It's pathetic that the great issue is how much is Harry Sayen worth" Mr. Sayen replies. "I believe in declaring complete sources of income; and who your creditors are and I did this. The IRS form and my total net worth is voyeurism and imposition. I have signed an affidavit that none of my sources of income does business with the county. Does my opponent's business do business with the county?"

Talking about his candidacy, Mr. Sypek says with pride, "We have a very progressive county -- and this isn't as well-known as it should be." He talks about education ("it took courage to appropriate money for a large community college" .... "we're the first county to sign a contract with the Public Service Institute to improve the skills of county employees ..." almost 100 percent of our vocational graduates find some kind of employment), or about transportation ("Mercer is the only county that has taken over mass transportation: Trenton would be dead, otherwise.")

He refers to rebuilding the old and delapidated jail, and to Youth House where persons under 16 are given "some degree of rehabilitation. We teach them to read. Many can't read at all, and I mean AT ALL." The Work House, he explains, "tries to get people back into society where they belong, not just give them $5 and send them off."

"We holler about being first because we are!" he says, referring to County Social Planning Council studies now being made under a Federal grant, studies that will enable county residents to learn from a central source where to go for specialized services. A grant from SLEPA, it is hoped, will improve and computerize court information procedures, thereby speeding up the criminal justice machinery.

Capital Problem. His opponent, Mr. Sayen, believes Trenton itself is a top issue. "As Trenton's rateables go down, the burden on the suburbs goes up," he says, "we should put the best brains toward 'helping Trenton to help itself.' Trenton is midway between two major cities, it's the state capital, on a major waterway, Federal highways and a major railroad. My business antennae tell me service-oriented businesses can be sold on the idea of coming to Trenton. Nobody has done it. I berate my opponent: why haven't the resources of the county been put behind Trenton? Where has he been for 16 years? A healthier Trenton is a healthier Mercer County."

Regarding the required Administrative Code, Mr. Sayen charges Mr. Sypek with wanting to keep the status quo. Mr. Sayen himself believes semi-autonomous bodies like the Mercer County Improvement Authority or the Park Commission, should be brought into departmental line responsibility with individual budgets "really checked out."

High on Mr. Sayen's list is developing trust and confidence between municipalities and the county. "Every municipal government has told me it would consider turning over some of its problems to the county if

Air of Uncertainty Pervades Presentation Of First Play in New Season at McCarter

IN SEASON'S FIRST AT McCARTER: Karl Light as Mr. Waddy and Pat Hingle es Herman Starr in McCarter Theatre inaugural production of "A Grave Undertaking."

(Cliff Moore Photo)

It makes great good sense in this Bicentennial year for an outstanding American theater to perform a new work by a young American playwright, and the McCarter Theatre Company of Princeton opened its star-spangled 1975-76 season last Thursday with "A Grave Undertaking" by 25-year-old Lloyd Gold.

As directed by the McCarter's Producing Director, Michael Kahn, the Gold play struck this reviewer as long on theatricality and short on consistency, of either style or story; but it reaches peaks of poetic intensity, offers some fine performances and a spectacular setting, and has moments of macabre humor for those who fancy it.

Plays that begin on one level, and seem headed in one direction, only to shift levels and directions, are hard to describe. When author and director seem uncertain what their play is centrally about, a critic is forced to offer his own structural analysis, and here is ours: This is an old-fashioned, romantic, sentimental, and quite touching love story incompatibly wedded to a trendy, corpse-filled, black comedy. Ironically, what is old-fashioned seems fresh, engaging, and original; what is trendy seems dated and derivative.

In our view, the central character is Monica Starr, a 15-year-old wisp of a girl who was born a "blue baby" and faces imminent death from a leaky heart. Her mother died in bearing her, and her undertaker father, Herman, keeps Monica imprisoned in the spooky old house which serves as his funeral parlor, fearing that exposure to the world will kill her.

Symbolism Abounds. Ostensibly to steel her against death, he treats her badly; not only curses and confines her but makes her put smiles on the mouths of cadavers. The play abounds in symbolism.

One day Monica limps

News Of The THEATRES

downstairs and faints in the arms of a beautiful young Catholic priest there to officiate at his first funeral. She sees in him the Lochinvar of whom she has read in the romantic library her mother left her, and she looks to him for rescue not only from loneliness but perhaps even from death. As starters he can take her to Mardi Gras (all of this takes place in New Orleans at the appropriate season). In the end he does, costumed as Lochinvar, and she is literally thrilled to death, dying in the arms of her father after describing the wonders of Mardi Gras so beautifully that father is persuaded it is better to live intensely for a little while than to be cooped up forever.

As written by Gold and played by Susan Offner, Monica is dynamic, a supercharged butterfly, hungry for life, full of poetic talk that alternates between her rough-tongued father's vulgarity and the romantic fancies of her mother's novels. It is a stagey role, owing something to Carson McCullers' Frankie and to various of Tennessee Williams' creations (Gold is a southerner), but Gold and Offner and Kahn carry the type into new territory. Chris Sarandon as the tortured young priest is convincing and appealing. When the play revolves around Monica, it seems worth the elaborate production McCarter has given it.

Pat Hingle Strong. But Monica's story is embedded and at times lost in goings-on that have little to do with her. Pat Hingle is a strong actor and extremely effective as the father when he is relating directly to Monica; when, so to speak, in her orbit. But since much of the play is about his vocation as an undertaker, and is out of her orbit, much seems irrelevant and even exasperating.

A long opening scene gives us an Irish corpse, two Irish mourners, unfunny word jokes on the names O'Brien and Ryan. This is introducing a young priest the hard way. We are led to expect an Orton "Loot" or a Kopit "Dad, Poor Dad." But no, the corpse is there to establish Herman's hatred of death. At one point he tries to throttle it. He plays a scene with it on the embalming slab, carries it in his arms down the long stairs to the parlor.

There is byplay between Herman and the head of the local undertakers' guild, who would close him up for conduct unbecoming a "grief counsellor." Karl Light is a first-rate actor but this is an unoriginal, uninteresting, and unnecessary character, as is the sheriff, played by Frank Borgman, who finally comes to shutter Herman.

The time devoted to Herman's occupation, and Pat Hingle's billing as the play's star, and the double-punning title, all suggest that author and director saw him as the central character, and the undertaking business as ripe for comedic criticism, which maybe it is, but not with lines like "So what if he sleeps with his mother, and she's been dead for ten years?"

Macabre Birthday Party. William Larsen as Herman's alcoholic physician brother and Richard Dix as an aging undertaker's apprentice are convincing when they relate to Monica. Both dress up and do Mardi Gras with her and her priestly Lochinvar. A birthday-party-for-Monica scene in which Dix does imitations of Laurence Olivier while standing on an occupied coffin is tolerable because it delights Monica.

The two-level setting by Paul Zalon gives us a huge, dark-wood-paneled old Charles Addams mansion with stained glass windows, its upstairs devoted to the embalming room, obscenely convincing with its slab and other paraphernalia, and Monica's bedroom. Downstairs is all funeral parlor.

Connecting the two is a broad, ornately bannistered, rock-substantial-looking staircase down which Monica at various times limps, skips, flits, and staggers, and up which, in the play's final moments, her body is carried by the priest to be embalmed by her waiting father, who has put on rubber apron and gloves for the occasion. A play as inconsistently sensitive as this one makes a viewer uneasy, and we were relieved when the big red curtain fell before the slab-happy embalmer could begin his work.

The setting suits the play admirably, but, in a community where everyone is aware of the McCarter's financial problems, its no-expenses-spared elaborateness is distracting. One can't help wondering—as when being taken to an expensive dinner by a friend in financial difficulties—"Can we afford this?"

Gold's play was produced at the Eugene O'Neill Memorial Theatre at Waterford, Conn., and by the Seattle Repertory Theatre, and was, says the program, "substantially revised" for McCarter. It continues through the coming weekend.

William McCleery

"ROYAL FAMILY" NEXT

At McCarter. Eva LeGallienne and George Grizzard have been added to the cast of "The Royal Family," now in rehearsal at McCarter in preparation for the October 30 opening.

Miss LeGallienne will play Fanny Cavandish, a theatrical grande dame of the old school, who confidently plans a cross-country tour in spite of failing health. Mr. Grizzard will be Tony Cavandish, who leaves the stage for Hollywood, only to become entangled in breach-of-promise suits and fist-fights.

Rosemary Harris, whom McCarter audiences will remember from her appearances with the APA company in 1960-61 will play Julie Cavendish, who has picked up her mother's "first lady of the stage" mantle.

Sam Levene will be Oscar Wolfe, the family's theatrical agent, always watchful for his clients' (and his own) welfare.

The Cavendish family was created by George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber, who wrote "The Royal Family," but the similarity to the Barrymores is so obvious that lawsuits were threatened at one time.

"The Royal Family" is being directed by Ellis Rabb, who was also in Princeton during the APA seasons. At that time, he directed "The Sea Gull," "Hamlet" and "Anatol."

SECOND SHOW FRIDAY

For Inn Cabaret. The Inn Cabaret will play again Friday at 8:30 and 10:30 in the Prince William Room of the Nassau Inn. Admission is $2.50, and the doors open half an hour before each performance.

Among the performers lined up for the all-male opening and closing are Steve Bogardus, T. Harding Jones, Jim Hopkins, Toolie Clark, Harris Worcester and Dan Berkowitz. Roo Brown, the cabaret's vocal director, will sing "I Hate Men" from "Kiss Me Kate" and will join two of the men for a medley of Rodgers and Hart tunes. Also featured will be Georgine Freedman who will repeat her "Plant Lady" routine written by Laird White and original comedy material by Nat Hartshorne.

Peter Wright is musical director; Dan Berkowitz will emcee. Reservations may be made by phoning 924-6300 on Wednesday and Thursday. Bar service is available throughout the shows.

FIRST SHOW OCT. 23

By Players Co. of Trenton. The Players' Company of Trenton, is now in rehearsal for its first show of the season, Lorraine Hansberry's "A Raisin in the Sun," which will open October 23. Directing the play is Don Evans, co-founder of the theatre.

The play is set in Chicago's Southside and takes place sometime during the late 1950's. The Younger family, poor, unhappy, and searching, are waiting to receive what they believe will change their entire futures only to find that real change comes from within.

The Younger family is portrayed by Grace Hodges, Sam Floyd, Joanne Bullock, and Cheryl Jones with Todd Evans and Mark Matcho sharing the role of Travis Younger. Rounding out the cast are Kenny McLain, Kenny Ford, Edward Tyson and Hal Hogstrom, Chairman of the Speech and Theatre Dept. at Trenton State College.

The Company is housed in the Grace Baptist church on West State and Hermitage in Trenton. For reservations, call 921-2604, Monday through Sunday from 5-9 p.m. Information is also available for special student and group rates. Tickets are $2.95. Performances are October 23, 24, 25, 30, 31 and November 1, 6, 7, 8; show time is 8 p.m.

Twin Bill Opening Intime's New Season Has Common Thread: "Good Theatre"

Anyone who knows the playwright Peter Shaffer only through his psychological bombshell "Equus," now playing in New York, is in for a surprise at Theatre Intime's season-opening bill — Shaffer's "The Private Ear" and "The Public Eye" — in Murray Theatre.

One need not be too surprised, for versatility is a hallmark of Shaffer's dramas. From the subtle human relationships of "Five Finger Exercise," to the brooding historical moral questions in "The Royal Hunt of the Sun," to the farcical innovations of "Black Comedy," to "Equus" itself, he gives us something new each time. The common thread in all of them is that they are good theatre.

In writing "The Private Ear" and "The Public Eye," Shaffer apparently set out chiefly to amuse himself, and, by implication, us. Each of these longish one-acters contains three characters; in each, a woman and two men play out different versions of the human triangle; and in each the mood is comedy and the reaction is laughter.

In "The Private Ear" a deeply unsophisticated young man has invited a girl to his apartment, where he tries to woo her with classical music on a record-player. His efforts to use more direct methods (as he has been advised by a worldly pal before the girl arrives) are hilariously unsuccessful. At the end, one feels that pal and gal will meet again, while the young man is left with his records.

"The Public Eye" introduces us to a private detective, Mr. Christoforou, who has been hired by a jealous husband to keep an eye on the activities of his wife. Even to hint at the outcome would be unfair to a delightfully original plot. Suffice it to say that justice is done, in surprising fashion.

Mitchell Ivers and Katherine Stewart, both of whom are members of Intime's Executive Board, have directed the plays — Mr. Ivers "The Private Ear", Miss Stewart "The Public Eye." The acting is uniformly good, and in one case outstanding, for Steven Reisner, as Christoforou the detective, gives a performance which is genuinely comic and at the same time moving. He is ably supported by George Oliva as the husband and Alisa Matlovsky as the wife.

In the first play William Clark is convincing as the naive music lover with no knack for love-making. As his guest, Julia Sly is attractive and as provocative as need be. Michael Kelly plays the "chic" friend with an understanding of the character but without the necessary projection to make the most of his many good lines.

Mark Nelson has provided an interesting constructivist setting which, with changes in colored panels here and there, serves as backdrop for both plays. Judith Weiss has designed the lighting, and Edward Lechner is technical director.

"The Private Ear" and "The Public Eye" will be given again this Thursday through Saturday at 8:30. Reservations may be made by telephoning 452-8181.

Olessi, for Film. Frederick Olessi, the Lawrenceville film maker, has been awarded a silver medal by judges at the Cannes Film Festival for his film "Orpheus." At last year's Cannes Festival, the Olessi film "Endymion" won a silver medal.

"Orpheus" also won awards at the London Film Festival in March, and at the Malta Film Festival in November of last year. Written and directed by Mr. Olessi, "Orpheus" was filmed on the campuses of Princeton University and Stuart Country Day School, and photographed by Jack Conover. The film has a score composed by Arno Safran of Trenton State College. Mr. Safran's four songs are sung by Laura Hayes and Gordon Myers to the accompaniment of the Trenton State College Woodwind Quintet.

The cast consists of Robert Rockwell, Christine Beck, Jon Lorrain, Bernard Miller, Marie Miller, Sydelle Pittus, James, Anthony and Pat Colavita; Darlene, Diane and Denise Bryan and Cynthia Gooding.

Mr. Olessi is also a playwright. His play, "Judas," was given last Holy Week in the Princeton University Chapel. He is director of Development Communications at Princeton University.

TV SHOW SATURDAY

Creative Theatre to Perform. The Creative Theatre Unlimited Performance Troupe will wind up its first touring season with a guest appearance on the Public Broadcasting Authority's T.V. program, "Jerseyfile" this Saturday on Channel 52 at 5:30 p.m.

The Troupe will perform a scene from its children's play, "If You've Seen One Dragon..." In this segment Sir Harvey the Knight challenges Albert, the Reluctant Dragon, to a "jousting contest" which ends in a hilarious tickling match.

As part of the program Jerseyfile moderator Ruth Alampi will interview C.T.U. director Pat Cline who will announce special plans for the American Folklore play, "Golliwhoppers" which C.T.U. is now readying as its fall production. The play will be available to schools and community organizations during November and December.

PLAYHOUSE

Brother, Can You Spare A Dime? A documentary of Depression America of the 1930s, "Brother..." consists of a Niagara of film clips from old Hollywood movies and newsreels. Unfortunately, the cut and paste job has been assembled in arbitrary sequence without a unifying point of view.

Much of the material is very familiar, especially to Late, Late Show addicts, and will appeal primarily to nostalgia buffs. Combined with the harvest of movie clips are newsreel shots of breadlines, dust bowls, workers rallies and FDR bailing out the economy, shaking up the bureaucracy and ridiculing the Republican do-nothings.

If you want to see Golddigger Ginger Rogers warbling "We're in the Money" in Pig Latin and Shirley Temple reassuring her penniless public that "We're out of the red, the big bad wolf is dead," then the lack of coherence and structure won't bother you. Others, less insatiably hungry for nostalgia, may not be so forgiving.

PRINCE

Hard Times. Depression - era New Orleans is the setting for Charles Bronson's latest outing, "Hard Times", a gritty and effective combination of melancholic period atmosphere and suspense - laden action.

Bronson finds himself in an ideal vehicle as a rugged, individualistic street fighter who won't let his fists enrich or corrupt him. He receives fine support from James Coburn as his likeable weasel promoter.

The film is well paced, alternating between the atmosphere of Bronson's solitary existence --including his near relationship with Jill Ireland, a lonely convict's wife – and four or five excellent fight sequences. One is staged inside a three - story wire cage surrounded by tiers of screaming spectators and another in a deserted oyster factory.

The Depression supplies a nice mood but relatively little relevance. What is relevant are the intriguing characters in the film and the snappy dialogue they chew on. When Bronson wins a climactic fight and gets Coburn off the hook, he ends up on another freight train -- probably to re - emerge in a sequel.

MONTGOMERY THEATRE

Monty Python and the Holy Grail. A hilarious way - out comedy from the zany troupe - - Monty Python's Flying Circus -- behind the popular British TV series.

Outrageous barbs and sight gags highlight a madcap plot parodying the King Arthur legend. The film elevates silliness and satire to a fine art. -

ERIC, LAWRENCEVILLE

Gone With The Wind: More than three hours of Scarlet O'Hara and Rhett Butler and still probably the champ in the eyes of those 30 and older.

If you haven't seen this largely sympathetic view of the South during the Civil War go and see how a great film could be made without nude scenes and profanity. Clark Gable at his zenith. Also fine portrayal by Leslie Howard.

SERIES I TO BEGIN

At McCarter. Series I of the Princeton University Concerts will begin its season Monday, at 8:30, with a concert by the Hague Philharmonic, under the direction of Jean Martinon in McCarter Theatre. In the 71 years of its existence, the orchestra has developed from a municipal music organization to an internationally renowned orchestra.

Over the years it has benefited from the leadership of some of the world's greatest conductors: Toscanini, Stokowski, Bernstein and Boulez. Its permanent conductor for 24 years, Willem van Otterloo, appeared here in 1969 with the orchestra. His successor, Jean Martinon, was heard in Princeton previously conducting the French National Orchestra and the Chicago Symphony.

The present appearance of the Hague Philharmonic will feature Vincente Zarzo, French Horn, in Mozart's Concerto No. 4 in E flat Major. In addition, the program includes Schumann's Symphony No. 4 in D Minor and Nielsen's Symphony No. 4.

Tickets are available at the Theatre Box Office, at $7.50 and $6. Area students may purchase tickets at $2.50 one hour before the concert.

ON THE PODIUM: Jean Martinon will lead the Hague Philharmonic Monday at McCarter in the opening Series I concert in works by Mozart, Schumann and Nielsen.

Ms. Tedards has a Masters in voice from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and has performed in various Princeton recitals and operas since 1972. She was a member of the New York Pro Musica Antiqua and is currently a member of the 'Suffolk Owls," a Madrigal group in Philadelphia. She is a student of Mrs. Emmy Joseph in New York City and does free-lance solo work there.

James Carmichael is a graduate of Princeton University, Class of 1971. He majored in music and studied piano with Robert Miller and Robert Helps, and has given a number of solo performances in Princeton.

other programs throughout the Central New Jersey Area.

This program is the second in the 1975-76 Trinity — All Saints' Series of Musical Services and Concerts.

CONCERTS LISTED

In Annual Church Series. Concerts of choral music, chamber music for voices and instruments as well as orchestral concerts will be presented by the eighth annual Series of Musical Services and Concerts sponsored by the joint concerts committee of Trinity and All Saints' Churches in Princeton.

Choral concerts include a performance of Britten's cantata, "Saint Nicolas" at All Saints' Church on November 9; the Advent and Christmas sections of Handel's "Messiah" at Trinity Church on December 7; an Evensong by the Columbus Boy Choir of Princeton at Trinity Church on February 29; the Haydn 'Theresienmesse" and motets and anthems by Gabrieli and Purcell at Trinity Church on March 28; and close with the Ninth Annual Spring Concert by the Trinity Choir of Boys, Girls and Men on May 2 at Trinity.

The instrumental and chamber music concerts began with an opening program on the new Bannister harpsichord at All Saints' Church and will continue with a performance by the Collegium Musicum of Princeton (a chamber orchestra) at Trinity on October 19. The Collegium Musicum will continue their programs on the series with concerts on Monday, March 8 and Sunday, April 25. Chamber music programs for voices and instruments will be presented at All Saints' Church on January 25 and at Trinity Church on January 11.

The programs have been arranged by the Trinity—All Saints' Concerts Committee with Betty Braxton Preston and William Flemer, III as chairmen. All programs are open to the public.

OPERA BENEFIT SET

By Soroptimists Club. The Soroptimist International Club of Princeton will sponsor a benefit performance of Princeton Opera Association's production of "Die Fledermaus" Wednesday, October 29 at 8:30 in the Rider College Fine Arts Theatre.

"Die Fledermaus," which means "the Bat," is a full scale production with a cast and crew of 50. Johann Strauss' lilting melodies accent the happy tomfoolery of a dozen disguises. A lover parading as a husband ends up in jail; a chambermaid at a fancy ball is dressed in milady's finery; her mistress, appearing at the same soiree, catches her rascally husband impersonating a nobleman; a banker pretends to be a lawyer; and a Russian prince enjoys playing practical jokes. None of the fun is missed--it is all in English.

The proceeds of the benefit will be used for the numerous community service projects of the Soroptimist Club, such as the Princeton Nursing Home, the Training School for Boys at Skillman, the Keenagers of West Windsor, and the Youth Training Award. Tickets may be purchased from any member of the Soroptimist Club.

CONDUCTOR NAMED

For University Orchestra. Mr. Bruce Ferden has been named the new conductor of the Princeton University Orchestra. A native of Minnesota, Mr. Ferden has a Master of Music degree in conducting from the University of Southern California. He studied conducting with Daniel Lewis, accompanying with Gwendolyn Koldofsky and piano with Daniel Pollack.

In addition to conducting the Princeton University Orchestra, Mr. Ferden is an Assistant Conductor with the New York Philharmonic, Assistant Conductor to Lucas Foss with the Brooklyn Philharmonia Orchestra and Assistant Conductor to Peter Herman Adler with Juilliard's American Opera Center.

The first Orchestra concert of the 12975-76 season will be on November 9, in Alexander Hall, with a program of Berlioz, Beethoven and Dvorak.

PIANO RECITAL SET

In Choir College Anniversary Series. In continuation of its 50th Anniversary celebrations, Westminster Choir College will hold the second in a series of seven musical evenings when it presents the Cyprus born pianist, Marios Papadopoulos, in a program of Beethoven, Schubert, Chopin and Stravinsky Tuesday, at 8, in the campus Playhouse.

Mr. Papadopoulos began his piano study when he was five, and by fourteen years of age he had performed at the Sion Festival of Music in Switzerland and on both radio and television. He has performed in Berlin with the Berlin and Berkshire Youth Orchestras, in London with the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, and at the 1972 Bath Festival. The only pianist selected by the Greater London Arts Association as a "Young Musician '73," he was subsequently invited to play in the Purcell Room, and has performed several recitals at the Queen Elizabeth Hall, as well as making a number of recordings for the British Broadcasting System.

OPERA TO TRAVEL

"Hansel and Gretel" In Pennsylvania. This year, at the invitation of the Forks of the Delaware Concert Series, the Princeton Opera Association is taking a double-cast "Hansel and Gretel" some eighty miles into Easton, Pa. for a Saturday, November 1, performance at 2:30.

Since this involves over seventy people, it is no small simple trip. The technical crew are sent well ahead; the ingenious reversible set will go in one truck; singers will carpool; and parents will take angels and gingerbread children in all available station-wagons. The performance follows close on the heels of the local performances at the Princeton High School on Saturday, October 25 at 10:30 a.m. and Wednesday, October 29, at 1:30 p.m.

Princeton Opera Association is also currently staging "Die Fledermaus" at Rider College on October 29 at 8 p.m. Tickets for "Hansel and Gretel" are $1.25 for children and $2. for adults, available at the door.

Remember this when taking unprescribed medicines: many of these medicines contain pain-killing drugs that temporarily cover up any possible symptoms of disease. The person who uses them may feel better for a while, and so neglect the medical treatment he or she needs. In the meantime, the condition may grow worse. It is so much safer to call your doctor immediately when symptoms of illness appear--the physician can begin treatment of your condition right away.

Greeting cards and candies are always appropriate gifts for any occasion and at FORER PHARMACY, 160 Witherspoon we have a great selection to choose from. PRINTS SHOWN

Princeton History Displayed. A collection of historical prints entitled, "1776-1976, A Portfolio: Princeton, New Jersey," is currently on view Monday through Saturday, 8 to 4, in the gallery of the Kirby Arts Center, at The Lawrenceville School.

The collection of historical prints marking the role of Princeton in the nation's history, is a collection of etchings, engravings, silkscreens, and collographs by 15 women artists. They include Judith Brodsky, Yvonne Burk, Trudy Glucksberg, Dorothea Greenbaum, Ann Gross, Lonni Sue Johnson, Margaret K. Johnson, Renee Levine, Joan B. Needham, Mae S. Rockland, Helen Schwartz, Mari Sturken, Jane Teller, Linda White and Ann Woolfolk.

The project was conceived as a bicentennial celebration by Zelda Laschever, 39 Scott Lane, former co-director of the Princeton Junior Museum, and was funded by a grant from the Princeton Bank and Trust Company, who have loaned the prints and the plates for the exhibit at Lawrenceville.

The portfolio has already been shown at Morven, in connection with Princeton's opening bicentennial celebration, and at the Nassau Street office of the Princeton Bank and Trust Company.

The artists, who have banded together under the name Princeton Bicentennial Printmakers, limited the edition of the portfolio to 20. Of these Princeton University, the State Museum, the New Jersey Bicentennial Commission, and several private firms have purchased copies at $1,000 each, and the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Smithsonian, and similar institutions have expressed an interest in acquiring sets.

The artists are currently preparing a second portfolio covering the ten crucial days from December 26, 1776 to January 3, 1777.

Drawing as a fully realized

rtists represented in this xhibition.

Selected by Elke M. olomon, formerly Associate urator of Prints and

Museum of American Art,
New York, this exhibition is in art a distillation of a larger how that Ms. Solomon rganized for the Whitney in 1973.

The artists represented are William Allen, James Bishop, Vija Celmins, Brice Marden, Jim Nutt, Alan Saret, Pat Steir, and Richard Tuttle. Both William Allen and Jim Nutt created drawings especially for the exhibition.

The exhibition is accompanied by an illustrated catalogue with text by Ms. Solomon which is available at the Museum for $3.50.

George Exhibit Opens—"An American Artist in China," an exhibition of landscape drawings of China by Thomas George, has also opened at the Museum. It will continue through November 30.

Thomas George visited the People's Republic of China in the summer of 1974 for the purpose of drawing the celebrated mountains in and around the town of Kweilin in Kwangsi province, south central China. Some of the drawings were made on boat trips some 80 kilometers down the river Li between Kweilin and the town of Yangsuo. Some show views from mountain tops, others are of gardens, decorative rock shapes, temples, and communes.

On view will be twenty-three drawings, two sketchbooks, and one woodcut. The drawings are executed with black ink and sable brush on paper.

Works by Thomas George are in the collections of the Museum of Modern Art, New York; the Whitney Museum of American Art; the National Collection of Fine Arts, Washington, D.C.; the Yale University Art Gallery; the San Francisco Museum of Art; the Tate Gallery, London; the Museum of Fine Arts, Lausanne; and numerous other collections both in this country and abroad.

The Art Museum is open Tuesdays through Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m. The Museum is closed Mondays and major holidays (including Thanksgiving Day, November 27).

GALLERY TALKS....

At University Museum, "Take a Museum Break" talks by artists and art experts will begin this Friday, October 17, at the Princeton University Art Museum, and the Sunday afternoon Gallery Talks will start Sunday, October 19. The brief lectures are free, and the public is invited.

"Museum Breaks" are cycled to the working man or woman's lunch hour, and last from 12:40 to 1:40 each Friday. Talks are a brief ten (or 15) minutes.

The half-hour Sunday afternoon talks are often related to current exhibitions at the Museum. "Bring the family," the Museum suggests.

This Friday's "Museum Break" speaker will be the artist Thomas George, who will speak on "American Artist in China." He will talk about the Chinese mountain drawings he made on a 1974 trip to mainland China. An exhibition of these drawings will open in October.

This Sunday, Marilyn McCully, assistant professor in the University's Department of Art and Archaeology, will talk on "Recent American Drawings," relating her remarks to the Museum's new show.

In subsequent weeks, visitors may hear talks on Mille's "Nereid," "Bernini and the Baroque Crucifix," "American Primitive Painting" and "The Rape of the Sabines."

Watch TOWN TOPICS' weekly calendar for dates and subjects.

2 ARTISTS FEATURED

At Color Wheel Exhibit. Two Hopewell artists, Harry E. McCandless and Hope Carter, are currently exhibiting their works at the Color Wheel Art Supplies, 23B West Delaware, Pennington.

Mr. McCandless offers his collection of watercolor paintings depicting scenes of Stonington, Maine and New Brunswick, Canada. A lifelong resident of this area, he has been painting for about 10 years.

He has exhibited at the State Museum in Trenton, Phillips Mill, Hunterdon Art Center, Princeton Art Association shows, the Garden State Watercolor Society, and the Woosamonsa Art Group and has received awards from several of those organizations for his watercolors as well as oil paintings.

Sharing the spotlight with McCandless' paintings are the biomorphis sculpture of Hope Carter. Mainly carved from soapstone, the works offer an enjoyable tactile experience and visitors are encouraged to "please touch."

Mrs. Carter has worked with the Art Students League in New York City and the Study of sculpture with Margaret Johnson at the Art Association plus the Fletcher Farm Craft School in Vermont.

Her sculpture is in private collections, and she has exhibited in Art Association shows. This year received a Mercer County Purchase Award for her entry in the Mercer County Art Show.

The public is invited to visit the gallery Tuesday through Saturday, 9-5. The exhibit will continue through November 1.

GALLERY HONORED

For Contribution to Art. E. R. Squibb & Sons is one of 46 companies honored for outstanding contributions to the arts in 1974 in the eighth annual Esquire— BCA "Business in the Arts" awards competition.

Squibb won honorable mention for its art gallery which annually mounts eight public exhibitions. The gallery is located in the pharmaceutical firm's World Headquarters three miles south of Princeton on Route 206.

The gallery opens its fourth season Sunday and continues through October 31 with a collection of privately owned American paintings dating from 1762—1914. That exhibition will be followed November 7— December 5 by a selection of large color photographs of the unique beauty and variety in the state of Alaska.

Gallery hours are 9-4:30, Monday-Friday. It is occasionally open on Sundays.

CHINESE MOUTAIN PAINTINGS: Sitting in front of Thomas George's sketches from a trip to China, the first exhibit of the season sponsored by the Friends of Princeton Art Museum, are the artist's brother and sister-in-law, New York producer George George and his wife. Details on show this page.

SUEDE AND LEATHER

At Hide 'n Hair. Fashion writers have been calling this the year of investment clothing, and certainly the classic styles and handsome fabrics add up to clothes that should be around for years.

With its suede and leather fashions, Hide 'n Hair (a division of Flemington Fur) is an excellent place to begin this type of shopping.

For a coat you're likely to wear 10 months of the year, we liked a reddish brown leather one with a zip-out lining. This single-breasted coat has a full yoke above a semi-fitted waist, giving you lots of room to move, $140.

We also liked a chamois and suede blazer and a saddle leather coat with tucks down the front and back, $110 and $145. Many of these coats and jackets come with fur trim such as a grey pigsuede wrap coat with lamb down the front and around the collar, cuffs and hem, $165.

Particularly pretty is a butter-soft brown leather double-breasted coat with nicely detailed back pleats and a dark fox collar, $240. There are sheepskin styles too, and a taupe shearling pant coat with a zipper front costs $190.

TOWN AND COUNTRY COAT: Flemington Fur has a far broader scope than the name at first suggests. For example, wool coats such as this plaid one can be found at the main store as well as at Hide n' Hair, a division specializing in suede and leather clothing.

Leather clothing is not limited to outerwear. You can also think about a flared suede skirt with gold snaps down the front, in camel, rust or brown $55; or a handsome pantsuit. These come with shirt jackets or blazers in all the natural colors plus a green and a patchwork blue denim, $155 to $235.

Fun Fur Jackets. While the mainstay of this store is leather, there are other fashions too such as fun fur jackets and woolen coats. We liked a mid-calf (or longer) green loden cloth cape, a blue plush wool wrap coat with a Norwegian blue fox collar, and a cinnamon plush hooded jacket, $65 to $195.

Hide 'n Hair has accessories too and we've never seen so many hats—corduroys, suedes, fur, knits and wools. Of course, there are purses too and here our favorite was a saddle leather bag which with its several pockets is large enough for a short overnight, $66.

There are sweaters, fashion toe socks (some packaged with matching gloves), scarves and shawls. One of the shawls—a black orlon acrylic with an Indian border design has a matching scoop-necked vest. Worn together with a mid-calf or long skirt they would be quite outstanding, $20 for the shawl and $12 for the vest.

Located at Turntable Junction in Flemington, Hide 'n Hair is open seven days a week from 10:30 to 5:30

OLD AND NEW CRAFTS

At Craft House. Small doesn't necessarily mean little, and any visitor to Flemington's Craft House will soon know this. Located in half of a small building behind 82 South Main Street, this new store has a surprisingly large range of new and old crafts.

Owner Richard Suozzo listens to suggestions and is constantly adding new lines. For instance, most recently he bought some pre-cut frames for customers who want to finish their own needlepoint pictures—these are now high on one wall.

Among the needlepoint kits there are some delighlful Babar canvases which depict this beloved elephant with his family, in a balloon or watering his garden. With other kits you can make Disney characters, an art nouveau lady holding a champagne glass or several of the Saturday Evening Post's Norman Rockwell pictures, $9 to $12.

There are also kits for making pin cushions, eyeglass cases and a belt with multi-colored wavy stripes, $4 to $10. However, if you are beyond the kit stage, you can choose from the handsome individual canvases such as a Medieval tapestry scene by Mazaltov, Renoir's Sur La Terrasse or stained glass windows by Karen, $8 to $36.

Or if you wish to create your own design, there are 12-hole mono or 14-hole interlocking canvases ($6.50 and $7 a yard). The Craft House also offers custom canvases by

It's New to Us

Frances who specializes in transferring your children, pets or house into a workable picture.

For working these many canvases, there is DMC persian wool, Columbia-Minerva's persian-type yarn in many colors, Veloura (a plush yarn) or a silver and gold metallic one for creating special effects.

For Crewel Fans. Crewel devotees will find a charming Bicentennial calendar here with 12 major Revolutionary scenes to embroider, $9, while newcomers to this craft can start with an ABC picture that employs one basic stitch, $5.

Unusual (and reasonably priced) Christmas gifts are almost impossible to find, but The Craft Shop has two suggestions. There is a new line of needlepoint and crewel jewelry which lets you make earrings, barrettes or pins for only $5. Then for your younger friends, you can make a furry Wally Koala or a Cheerleader doll complete with pomporns, $8 and $7.

We also suggest embroidering your own denim jacket, jeans, or what have you, and Columbia-Minerva now has some transfer patterns that make it easy. Five American Indian motifs and the necessary thread costs only $2.

A simple five-minute decoupage has been developed and The Craft House carries this too. Simply glue on the transfer picture, brush on Glostique and you're done—one coat seals and finishes your work. A four-ounce can cost $2.29.

Another new craft is Photique which enables you to transfer Polaroid or Kodak photographs onto any surface—a ceramic dome, a lamp, wooden plaque or whatever.

There are old crafts too such as macrame, knitting, and quilling, and here you'll find the necessary cord, beads, paper, wool, and tools. If any of these are new to you, The Craft Shop has lots of instruction booklets to get you started. They are all paperbacks (and thus inexpensive) and all the crafts are covered—Bargello, nature crafts, heirloom quilts, quilling and knitting to name just a few.

Mr. Suozzo also keeps a list of interested customers, and when he has five people he'll set up a special two-hour introductory class on any craft at all. The cost is $5. Another nice feature of this shop is the monthly demonstrations.

The Craft Shop is located behind 82 South Main Street, Flemington. This is right across the street from Flemington Fur, and the hours are 10 to 5 Monday through Saturday with Friday evening hours until 9 and Sunday hours from 12 to 5.

the new form of government proves itself," he declares.

The question is important to Mr. Sypek also. He advocates "closer liaison with local governments, and with state and Federal governments, making sure that on a person-to-person basis we know the needs of our municipal counterparts."

He also wants to press the state to take on welfare and judicial costs, which are now borne by the county. "This is vital" he believes.

Beyond town and county, Mr. Sayen sees the region. "We have major regional problems and we'd better face up to that," he says, "when the Assunpink floods, Lawrence Township can't handle it alone."

Ombudsman Needed. Mr. Sypek would like to see a county ombudsman --- "a specifically designated public agent, not an elected official, whose job it would be to oversee me --- as County Executive --- and the Freeholders and the entire government of Mercer County. After the scandals of the Republican administration, all Americans have jaded attitudes toward government. An ombudsman would have broad-ranging authority to investigate every area of county government."

Mr. Sayen, in campaigning, has encountered jaded attitudes, also, and believes that lack of political credibility has prevented passage of tax reforms.

He tells about a voter he met in a supermarket who asked him what party he belonged to. "Madam, I am a Republican," he said.

"She said, 'You damn Republicans! I've got a cellar full of Assunpink Creek and it's all your fault!' "

"I told her Hamilton Township and Mercer County had been Democratic for 30 years, Trenton since I-don't-know-when, and the state Democratic for ten years out of the last 14 including right now. 'Young man, let's you and me throw those Democrats out!' she said!"

Mr. Sypek, with a somewhat different view, concludes by saying "As Freeholder Director, I'm leading the leading county of New Jersey. Minority Freeholders supported me as Director. I've done a good, administrative job in Mercer County, this new job will be a challenge in my life, I played a big role in bringing about the change, and I'm very happy."

Tigers Eye Colgate as Fourth Victim But Alarm Goes Out for Running Game They Cannot Find

HERE I AM, FELLAS! Tiger back Art Walker, uncovered in Cornell end zone, catches pass from Ron Beible for touchdown at Ithaca. The TD was, however, Princeton's only such score and it took three Scott Morrison field goals to assure narrow 10-8 triumph. (Bob Matthews Photo)

Princeton University's football team, which had felt it was ready to display a balanced offense, will spend the next two weeks hoping its defense can buy the time needed to develop one.

The Tigers return home to Palmer Stadium this weekend with Colgate as their opponent and will meet Penn here the following weekend. Neither opponent has been impressive and if Princeton is to earn a valid contender's role in the Ivy race, it must be able to move the ball consistently by the time it faces Brown here on the afternoon of November 1.

For the first time in a decade, the Orange and Black has won its first three games, and it has done so almost entirely because its defense has held the opposition to a total of 20 points. After four years during which the Tigers failed to top the .500 mark, unbeaten status going into the fourth game is welcome, indeed, but in view of the caliber of the opposition, the achievement is not all that great.

Rutgers, Columbia and Cornell have played a total of 10 games among them this year and have defeated just two opponents—— winless Hawaii by Rutgers and Bucknell twice, by both Rutgers and Cornell. This is not to downgrade Princeton's performance in continuing the rebuilding program that Bob Casciola launched two seasons ago, but rather to say immense improvement is necessary over the brand of play shown at Ithaca if thoughts of victories in any of the games against Brown, Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth are to be entertained.

On Cornell's shiny Poly Turf, where the game began under a bright sun and a mild southern breeze and ended in a steady rain whipped by a chill northeastern wind, the Tigers began as if to break the game open early and ended by hanging on to stave off a distastrous tie. Given three opportunities for touchdowns in the first half, they settled for one and a pair of field goals, and then spent the rest of the afternoon searching vainly for their running game.

Unable to locate any semblance of it, they were bailed out by a defense that gave up just six points (the other two Cornell made came on a blocked punt charged to the offensive line), and by Scott Morrison's third field goal. So punchless was the Princeton running game that Garland Burns, a sophomore quarterback who has yet to start a game, outgained the Tigers on the ground in the second half by himself, 39 yards to 30.

On the third play that Cornell ran in the game, a misguided pitchout resulted in a fumble and Captain Ed Sheridan gave his team possession on the home team 44. Nine plays later, Bobby Isom hit right tackle from two yards out, rolled off the heap of players and danced into the end zone. The linesman raised his hands to signal a touchdown but the referee indicated that he had ruled the play dead at the 1-yard line.

Out came Casciola on the field to question the decision, down went the field judge's flag to indicate a penalty (a coach may not walk onto the playing area without permission) and back went the ball 15 yards for a rules infraction. The public address announced it as unsportsmanlike conduct, but the signal was for a non-contact foul—either way, it put the Tigers back on the 16, from where Morrison's attempted field goal was wide to the right.

Two plays later, Cornell could not control another pitchout, Princeton recovered on the Red's 10 and two passes to Art Walker reached the end zone at 9:50 of the first period. As the game wore on and the extent of the rebuilding job that Cornell still must do became more and more apparent, it was increasingly difficult to believe that the Tigers had scored their lone touchdown of the day.

Weakness of the Princeton running game was demonstrated twice more in the second period when drives toward the goal line were cut short. Morrison hooted a 33-yard field goal the first time and a 28-yarder the next-- both highly welcome examples of his great kicking skill but also sending the Tigers off with a 13-0 lead when a take-charge offense could have made it 21-0.

Early in the second half, a dramatic shift in the weather drastically altered playing conditions. The wind veered nearly 180 degrees in a matter of minutes and helped waft a high center snap for a punt nearly over Ed Kuchar's head

By the time he came down with it, sufficient time had elapsed to allow tackle Bob Hall to break a weak block and get his hands solidly on the punt. The ball rolled more than 30 yards out of the end zone for an automatic safety, the Tigers getting a break because Cornell could not recover in time to set up a possible touchdown.

The Red did score early in the final quarter, going 60 yards in 17 plays, converting three times on third down and twice on fourth—the only time it managed to dominate the Tiger defense. When Burns tried to sweep right end for a two-point conversion, Sheridan was the first of three tacklers to smother him well short of the goal line.

There were, however, 12 minutes of playing time remaining and little more than the wind was in Princeton's favor. Cornell had the momentum and might well have been the victor had it been able to score again, trailing by only 13-8.

The Red's rebuilding pains cost it again, and this time it meant the ball game. The fourth fumble the home team lost was pounced upon on their 21 by Aaron Satterthwaite and although, thee plays later, the Tigers were five yards farther back, Morrison booted a 43-yard field goal to make the final score 16-8. The freak wind shift had him kicking with the 25-mile an hour gusts, and the ball sailed high and far over the center of the posts.

To the credit of the Princeton defense, Cornell never moved out of its own territory after coming to within five points of the victors. After Morrison's third field goal, the Red had two more shots at the 8-point TD needed to earn a tie but never broke the big play.

Beible's passing supplemented Morrison's kicking as the day's only bright spots: he completed 12 of 20 for 150 yards and a touchdown. Statistics on the yards gained running reflect the problem confronting the Tigers: Bob Reid, 11 yards in 8 carries; Mike Carter, 6 in 11; Art Walker, 9 in 7; and Bobby Isom, 21 in 8. Despite apparent backfield speed, gains around have been non-existent in three games to date, and on Saturday, against Cornell, shots at the middle were stacked up repeatedly.

WISHBONE ON VIEW

Colgate Has Offensive Potential. Colgate and its wishbone offense— an attacking pattern built around a quarterback who must be a good ball carrier as well as a passer and whose options on handoffs or keepers are both picturesque and complex— will return to Palmer Stadium Saturday. The operating chief is senior Bruce Basile, whose total offense of 1,510 yards last fall ranks him among the top 12 returning for more action in Division I of the NCAA.

For a variety of reasons, while his team has been defeating The Citadel, Cornell and Holy Cross and losing to Yale, Basile has not been keeping pace with his passing performance a year ago. His 17 completions in 40 attempts have gained 279 yards and no touchdowns, compared to the seven TD aerials on which he connected in 1974.

The Red Raiders' principal ball carrier is Pat Healy, a highly capable halfback whose freshman year was marked by a 5.6 average. Junior Bill Schick and sophomore Henry White are others who will see considerable action with Basile.

Colgate is a young team relying with some frequency on sophomores, and it has had its defensive problems, yielding a total of 60 points in its last three games after blanking The Citadel in its opener. The New York State eleven has lost in its last two appearances here (ranking as the Tigers' lone victim in 1973) but is almost never outclassed because its offense is rarely contained. If the troubled Princeton offense is held in check by the young Colgate defense, the Tigers may put more pressure on their own defense than it can withstand.

QUICK LOOK AT COLGATE

OFFENSE: Can be both flashy and explosive when operating at its best. Quarterback Bruce Basile and halfback Pat Healy are fine ball carriers

DEFENSE: Usually Colgate's Achilles Heel Allowed average of 32 points to 10 opponents last year but Tigers must maintain pressure this year to win

CHIEF ASSET: Ability to score behind quarterbacking of Basile as he runs wishbone offense

CHIEF PROBLEM: Offense must be at its best to overcome defensive weaknesses

TYPE OF ATTACK: Wishbone T

Beible Rewrites Tiger Record Book Again; Chamberlin and Morrison May Follow Suit

Ron Beible made it into the Princeton football record book (again) last week, and before the season is over, chances are good that he may be joined by both Neil Chamberlin and Scott Morrison.

Early in the first quarter at Cornell, Beible's second pass completion of the afternoon sent him past the late Dave Allerdice '41 for yards gained passing By the end of the day, Beible (with six games left) had 2626 against Allerdice's three-year total of 2492

Six receptions in each of his first three games has Chamberlin hot on the heels of Kerry Brown, who holds the mark of 31 passes caught in a single season, and Norm Skinner, whose career total ended in 1973 with 75 With his 18 this season, Chamberlin needs only 14 more in his last six games to pass Brown, and 23 more to top Skinner The average of six per game also has him among the top 10 nationally in receptions

Last season, Scott Morrison kicked six field goals in nine games; this year, he has already matched that figure in three. A start like that leaves him needing 10 more to match Charlie Gogolak's career record of 27

Morrison, who is 6 for 8 this fall, has a career average that currently is slightly better than Gogolak's The latter, a first-round draft choice a decade ago of the Washington Redskins, hit on 27 of 45 for 600. Morrison, currently 17 for 27, is clearing the bar at a 622 pace

PHS Football Team Wins Another, Looks Ahead To Showdown Battle with Hightstown Saturday

HIGH AND OUTSIDE: This pass from Thommy Thomas to David Lacy, one of the two thrown by Princeton High School in the first half against Lawrence, was high, but both performers did better later. Lacy scored on a 53-yard punt return for the game's first touchdown and Thomas scored on a three-yard keeper in the final period as the Little Tigers blanked Lawrence in the mud and rain, 13-0.

It's showdown time for the Princeton High School football team.

The shootout will be held Saturday at 2 at Hightstown between the Little Tigers, winners of their last two including a highly satisfying 13-0 shoutout over Lawrence Saturday, and the Hightstown Rams, who have one of the most potent attacks seen in several years.

Led by its All-Mercer area candidate, Dana Shelton, Hightstown's statistics in its last two games — it is 3-0 — have been awesome. Saturday, 50-14 over St. Anthony's and 524 yards total offense; a week ago, 58-0 over Allentown and again 524 yards offense.

Shelton rushed for 247 yards and scored five TDs against Allentown. Against St. Anthony's, he ran wild for 171 yards in 15 carries and four scores. In three games, the small but exceedingly fast and shifty back has 10 touchdowns and 544 yards rushing.

Last season, Shelton amassed 1,444 yards — a Mercer County record — and 19 TDs. Three of those 19 were at the expense of Princeton last year when Shelton rushed for 196 yards to lead the Rams to a 24-0 win.

Clearly, Shelton and the Rams' other fine running back, Brian Ishman, represent a formidable challenge to PHS, one that Little Tiger coach Jim Beachell seems eager to accept.

Bubble Breakers. "We'll play the best possible game we can," promised Beachell. "They have their whole team back and they think they're going to state. We'd like to break their bubble."

Stopping the Rams, of course, is up to the PHS defense. Led by its fine 6-3, 215-pound tackle Craig Rendall and middle linebacker Nate Harris, PHS has shown it can be tough to penetrate. It stopped the Cardinals last week on the one-foot line.

A solid PHS defense getting better with each game going against an explosive Hightstown attack... it's a natural. If PHS has a weakness it is against the pass and Mike Radice of the Rams (8 for 13 against St. Anthony's and 187 yards) is the equal of any passer PHS has faced this year.

On the other side of the coin, PHS is probably the toughest opponent Hightstown has faced so far this season. Both St. Anthony and Allentown have yet to win a game so the Rams have not been fully tested.

"Wanted This One." "I wanted this one," said a jubilant Beachell after the Lawrence game. "They owe us one from last year when they ruined the season for us." PHS was 2-0 last fall when it met Lawrence for the first time. It lost to the Cardinals and then dropped the next four to finish 4-5.

"We worked real hard this week," reported Beachell. "I got the guys up for the game and we won — it's as simple as that." The entire game was played in the rain and Beachell said that the resultant wet field helped Princeton.

The first half was scoreless, although each side had apparent touchdowns nullified by penalties. The first score came with dramatic suddeness when David Lacy gathered in a Lawrence punt in full stride and raced 53 yards up the middle with 1:19 remaining in the third period.

The play was not as spontaneous as it looked. "We've been working on that punt return for a long time trying to get it to work," said Beachell. "It's set up the middle and we knew Lacy could break it if he got some blocks." As it turned out, Lacy got two good blocks and he was gone.

Princeton's other score came after Harris recovered a fumble by Lawrence quarterback Ralph Ditmars on the Cardinal 22. On a fourth and eight, PHS kept the drive alive when Tommy Thomas passed to Dan Schulman for the Blue and White's only completion of the game. Mixing his plays well, Thomas advanced the team to the three where he was again faced with a fourth down. He then crossed the visitors up by going over on a keeper to nail down the win.

Princeton had apparently scored early in the game when Thomas tossed the ball back to Tony Strong on the option and Strong raced down the sidelines from 41 yards out, only to have an official say he stepped out of bounds on the 26.

Things evened up when Robert Sica returned a Barry Turner punt some 40 yards near the end of the first period but that was nullified by a questionable call charging Lawrence with clipping.

Lawrence threatened again near the end of the half when it drove from the PHS 46 down to the one foot line where the visitors called time with four seconds left. Ditmars tried to carry it over on a sneak but was replused by the entire middle of the PHS line.

"Learning the D." "The kids are finally learning the D," agreed Beachell after the game. "We knew we had to stop their running... they have a short quarterback (Ditmars is listed at 5-6) and we thought he would have trouble passing. "We gave them the quick pitch but were able to stop them up the middle."

Even on the outside, Lawrence's two speeders, Sica and Richard Levy had trouble turning the corner. Time and again, they were met by Harris, or defensive end Eric Ziolkowski for no gain.

"Rendall, (Jim) Lennon, (John) Hoover... the whole team did a great job." Beachell also cited the play of Thomas ("he's really coming around") and Ziolkowski, who, he said, got tired from playing both ways after a fine first half.

4 UP, 3 TO GO

For PDS Eleven. Princeton Day School's football team continued to move inexorably toward that first undefeated season last week with a 26-14 victory over Morristown Beard.

Billy Martin rushed for 194 yards in 16 carries and teammate Mark Blaxill enjoyed his best game of the season, carrying for 131 yards in 12 carries, as the Panther varsity ran up a 26-0 lead before sitting out the second half.

PDS will oppose Gill-St. Bernard's School Saturday afternoon on the latter's field near Morristown in quest of its fifth straight. Kickoff is at 1:30.

"Gill-St. Bernard's is the most explosive team we've seen to date," said PDS coach John Boneparth. "They have a great set of running backs so it will be a very tough game for us."

Following Saturday's contest, PDS has only two games remaining: Wardlaw and crosstown rival Hun School. It is seeking to defend its N.J. Prep School Class B football championship.

Boneparth, privately, did not expect winless Morristown-Beard to surprise his team which he described as "the best ball club we ever had." And the visitors didn't. They were no match for the PDS varsity which scored four times in its first six possessions.

Martin scored three times, one a 35-yard ramble. The 198-pound tailback, who plays tackle on defense, also recovered a fumble. He has 559 yards rushing in four games in his quest to better last year's mark of 1430.

The game's first touchdown came on a 12-yard pass from Bill Baggitt to Mark Zawadsky.

Boneparth has called his backfield of Martin, Blaxill, sophomore Rob Olsson and quarterback Bill Baggitt as the finest in the area. "I can't imagine anyone being any better."

HUN VS. BLAIR

At Home Saturday. After an opening win, the Hun School football team suffered its second loss last week when it was worn down by Peddie, 28-12.

Hun will try to even its record Saturday afternoon when it plays host to Blair Academy in a game starting at 2. Coach Dave Leete, who watched Blair play Newark Academy Monday, predicts a tough game.

Peddie scored on a 12-yard pass in the first period and a one-yard plunge in the second to take a 13-0 half-time lead. Hun cut that in half when Terry McEwen scored on a 40-yard pitchout in the third period, but failed in its try for a two-point conversion.

"We had a little momentum going for us and I think we gave them a pretty good scare but they just wore us down," said Leete. "We played well but we were outmanned."

Hun scored again in the final period on a 35-yard aerial from quarterback Nick Brady to end Larry Gebert—nullified, however, when Peddie added two more scores of its own in the same period. The last Hun TD was set up on a pass reception by McEwen. Terry was "held" to about 75 yards rushing by Peddie, which won its first game in four starts.

Leete cited the running of McEwen and the offensive and defensive play of Greg Pabers, a halfback and linebacker, and Gebert who doubles as a defensive halfback.

"We played hard – they just outsized us," observed Leete. "We had a chance in the middle of the third period and let it get away.

"We're improving," he added. "One of these weeks we'll put it all together."

U-STORE WINS BIG

Fuel Oil Tops Rug Mart. In the second week of play in the Princeton Midget Football League's senior division, Princeton University Store routed Nassau-Conover, 39-6, and Fuel Oil defeated Rug and Furniture Mart, 13-6.

In games this week, U-Store will meet Fuel Oil at the Princeton High School football field at 1 and a contest between Rug Mart and Nassau-Conover will follow.

Archie Jenkins of the U-Store wrecked Nassau-Conover with five touchdowns, scoring on runs of 21, 6, and 2 yards and on pass receptions of 40 and 30 yards. Doug Ferguson scored the victors' other six-pointer on a 65-yard gallop.

Defensively, U-Store was led by Pat McAvenia, Byron Varvel, Jenkins and Ferguson.

Wes Hill, who rushed for 68 yards in 19 carries, scored Nassau-Conover's lone TD in the second period. Each team lost the ball four times on fumbles.

Roger Dinella scored on a 21-yard pass and Mark Greenland on a 53-yard run to account for both Fuel Oil scores in its win. Mike Thompson and Peter Sharpless also contributed to the 126 yards rushing gained by the victors.

Rug Mart narrowed the lead to 7-6 at the half when John Kellogg picked up a Fuel Oil fumble and scored from 20 yards out. Strong on defense for the losers were Rick Galiardo, Tom Scibetta, Mike McManus, Mike Kennedy and Bob Dennehy.

Rug Mart had an edge in total yardage, 166 to 147, recovered three Fuel Oil fumbles, and had one one interception while suffering no turnovers of its own.

PIRATES EYE IRISH

As Next Victim. West Windsor, a football team on the way up, will meet Notre Dame, a team mired in a two-year losing streak, Saturday at 1:30 at the Irish's home field.

West Windsor was able to overcome mistakes of its own making last week to defeat Allentown, 6-0, on a three-yard run by Chris Holcombe in the final period.

Notre Dame, still struggling, lost its 12th in a row over the past two years when it dropped a 27-6 decision to Ewing. The six points were the first this season for the losers.

Three fumbles and two interceptions had West Windsor's attack sputtering against winless Allentown but the Pirates managed to put together a nine-play, 55-yard drive for the game's only score. The drive was kept alive by a 15-yard penalty called against Allentown on a punting situation.

Both Holcombe and John Martin rushed 39 yards for West Windsor, Holcombe in nine carries and Martin in ten. Twice the Pirates lost the ball on fumbles inside the Allentown 10-yard line and saw another drive fail with an interception in the end zone.

Allentown did little to help its own fortunes as officials stepped off 166 yards in penalties against the losers who have now failed to win in their last 22 starts.

2 SHUTOUTS RECORDED

In First Jr. Midget Games. Peterson Construction blanked J.P. Cleaver, 7-0, and First National Bank shutout Sibson, 6-0, last week in opening games at Grover Park in the Junior Division of the Princeton Midget Football League.

After Keith Phox scored on a 34-yard run for Peterson in the opening quarter, the game developed into a defensive battle. Scott Waterman, Chris Carrington, John Kandell and Norman Callaway led the Peterson defensive unit while Cleaver's was led by Tim Kennedy, Ken McKellar and Phox. Peter Nelson ran well for the losers and also was a standout on defense.

First National Bank combined a strong ground game and alert defense for its win. After three scoreless periods, Patrick Kellogg scored for the Bank after Billy Whittaker had gained a first down on the one-yard line.

Outstanding for the victors on defense were Jeff Henkel, who recovered three Sibson fumbles, Josh Miller who intercepted a pass, Alan Drummond and Whittaker.

Eric Broadway, Pierre Erlwanger, Brian Long and Stephen Fletcher played well for Sibson.

LEAGUES ARE FORMED

By Princeton Soccer Club. The Princeton Soccer Club has announced plans to establish competitive leagues based on age and ability.

The club is presently being divided into four groups: cubs, juniors, intermediates and seniors for formal play. Standings will be kept for all groups. First games of the season will be held on Saturday.

LaVake Jewelers and Varsity Sport Shop are sponsoring clubs in the cub division; Zinder's, Hinkson's, Allen's and Tiger Auto & Cycle Shop in the junior division; Laidlaw - Coggeshall, A&S Luncheonette, Princeton Pizza Palace and the Gallup Poll in the intermediate division; and New Jersey National Bank of Princeton and Princeton Savings and Loan in the senior division.

MORE CLASSES ADDED

To Winter Tennis Schedule. The Princeton Community Tennis Program and the Princeton Indoor Tennis Center have added more classes to their winter indoor programs.

Junior classes will be held every afternoon at the indoor center. In addition to Mr. Gudzinowicz, David Benjamin and the Princeton University varsity team will be teaching a special excellence group that will be held Saturday afternoon at the indoor center and Sunday morning at Jadwin Gym.

Morning classes for adults on Wednesday and Friday and adult evening classes on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday will be held at the indoor center. Mr. Gudzinowicz will also be instructing these classes. The senior citizens class will be offered again on Friday afternoons at the indoor center. Additional evening and weekend classes will be held for adults at the Community Park Inflatable.

The Winter Tennis Brochure contains details and registration forms. Those wishing additional information should call the Tennis Office at 924-4343 or the indoor center at 924-0015.

Three Advance in PP&K

Three Princeton boys have advanced in the annual Punt, Pass & Kick competition sponsored annually by the Ford Dealers of America and the National Football League.

In area competition held Saturday at Mount Holly, Paul Keaney, 11; Chris Colavita, 12; and Leroy Hunninghake, 13, all triumphed in their respective divisions. It marked the first time in the history of the PP&K that three finalists from one dealership had won. All had registered at Nassau-Conover Motor Company on Route 206.

The next level of competition for the three youths will be held Saturday at Veterans Stadium in Philadelphia.
